EXPECT YEAR'S LAYOFF IN WAR DEBT PAYMENT

Early Announcement Predicted Following Conferences at White House.

PROPOSAL GETS BACKING

Hoover Considers Move To Aid Germany and Help Break World Depression.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 20—Early announcement of a proposal to suspend all war debts and reparations payments for a year was expected from the White House as Democratic and Republican members of congress assured President Hoover today of their support.

The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, called at the treasury during the morning and conferred with Under Secretary Mills, acting chief during Secretary Mellon's absence in Europe.

Mr. Hoover talked with several senators last night and today over long distance telephone. Another who called at the White House during the day was Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts.

Senator Fletcher of Florida after talking with the President convinced him that Mr. Hoover's plans were the soundest that could be brought forth at this time.

"I am certain," he said, "that they will meet with support in congress."

Statement Expected

The talks with members of congress will continue into next week. Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, is being awaited. Meanwhile, the President was said at the White House today to be contemplating the early issuance of a comprehensive statement on the whole question.

One of the callers at the presidential offices today was Senator Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina. Ogden Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, also was there at the time and left shortly.

After several discussions yesterday, the President issued this statement:

"Since my return from the Cen-

HOOVER'S ACTION BOOSTS STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 20 — President Hoover's announcement that plans were afoot to help the economic recovery, particularly in Germany, sent security prices rallying today, on the New York Stock exchange as well as the Berlin boerse.

The rise in share quotations here approached in vigor the upturn in June 3, for numerous important issues were up $5 or $6. Shorts who had been following the slow decline earlier in the week were completely surprised and scampered to cover when the rally, after a quiet first half-hour, finally showed that it meant business.

Bonds, particularly German obligations, were strong, the so-called Young plan 5½s, rose more than $20 per $1,000 bond and there was a gain of similar size in the government 7s.

WORRIED

Peter Arno (above), New York cartoonist, asked for protection against Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who he said threatened to do him "bodily harm." Chief of Police J. M. Kirkley of Reno, Nev., reported Vanderbilt, who yesterday sued his wife for divorce, said the gun he is reported to have carried while out looking for Arno because of alleged attention paid Mrs. Vanderbilt, was not loaded.

FIVE PILOTS ARE PUNISHED

License of One Revoked; Others To Be Fined for Disturbing Dedication Here.

AVIATORS SEND APOLOGIES

Amelia Earhart Putnam Reprimanded Following Crash of Plane in Texas.

Punishment was meted out by the national department of commerce yesterday to five pilots whose planes disturbed the dedicatory program at the Harding Memorial Tuesday, Associated Press dispatches from Washington today disclosed.

At the same time, the commerce department reprimanded Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, one of the country's distinguished woman aviators, for aerial misbehavior in the crash of her autogyro two weeks ago at Abilene, Tex.

The license of Frank Byerley of Detroit, Mich., believed to have been the pilot of an autogyro belonging to the Detroit News, was suspended for 60 days, and penalties of fines were determined upon for John C. Corrodi, Joseph C. Mackey, Harold Distelhorst and Grant C. Melvin of Cleveland. The amount of the fines has not yet been fixed.

All Suspended

All planes hovering over the memorial during the dedication were chartered to carry aerial photographs of the dedication to newspapers in various parts of Ohio.

The five pilots have been under temporary suspension while an investigation was being made this week by H. F. Rough of Detroit, aeronautics inspector of the Detroit aviation branch of the department of commerce. The penalties were fixed by Secretary Lamont after he had received Rough's detailed report of the incident.

Secretary Lamont yesterday said

ANOTHER RECORD

Canadian Flier Is First To Cross English Channel in Glider.

By The Associated Press

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, June 20—Lieut. Lissant Beardmore, Canadian flier, inventor and opera singer, today held the distinction of being the first person to cross the English channel in a glider.

Starting at Lympne airdrome, England, yesterday, he rose to a height of 22,000 feet behind an airplane and cast off. He headed northward, gradually edging toward the sea, and sailed toward the French coast at a rate of 60 miles an hour. He landed at Stinglevert airdrome near Calais.

Lieut. Beardmore stole a march on six other men, who intended to compete today for a $5,000 prize offered by a London newspaper for a flight across the channel and back.

Lieut. Beardmore is 34 years old and a native of Toronto.

U. S. ENVOY DIES

Ralph H. Booth, Minister to Denmark, Victim of Heart Ailment.

By The Associated Press

VIENNA, June 20—Ralph H. Booth, editor and publisher and United States minister to Denmark, died today at Bad-Gastein, Salzburg, Austria. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Booth went to Bad-Gastein several weeks ago to undergo treatment for a heart ailment. There he was joined by Mrs. Booth, his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Dickerman Vogel, and his son, John Lord Booth.

The minister had been in ill health since last December when he suffered an attack of influenza.

DRIVE FAILURE TO CLOSE TWO RELIEF GROUPS

Red Cross and Family Welfare To Suspend Operations for Summer.

AGENCIES LACK MONEY

To Save Funds for Winter, When Demands for Aid Will Be Greater.

Failure of the Marion Community Fund to reach the prescribed goal, made itself felt again today when it was announced that both the Red Cross and the Family Welfare society would suspend operations for a part of the summer.

The Family Welfare society, it was announced by H. B. Walker, newly elected president, will close July 3 to remain closed until Aug. 17 while the Red Cross, it was announced by Miss Margaret Dowd, secretary, would close on July 6 to remain closed until Aug. 6.

Lack Funds

Lack of funds was given as the reason for the closing by the representatives of both organizations.

While the Red Cross headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. will be closed, one nurse will continue to work, it was announced by Florence Spaulding, supervising nurse. She will work out of the office of Health Commissioner Dr. N. Sifritt and will continue to carry on the work as far as possible. The closing will not effect the work of Miss Alma Denney, tuberculosis nurse, who also works out of the health commissioner's office. The expenses for this work coming from the Christmas Seal fund.

"When it became evident that we would not have sufficient money to carry out regular program," Miss Dowd said this morning, "we concluded that the summer would be the best time to suspend operations. It will be necessary to conserve at every point if we are to have enough money to carry out our work next winter."

A similar opinion was expressed by Mrs. Jane Alexander, managing secretary of the Family Welfare society. "We would not have sufficient money to operate the entire year and believe this to be the best time to close."

Announce Officers

The newly elected officers together with the committees who will function during the coming year were also announced at the welfare office.

The officers, who were elected at a recent meeting are H. B. Walker, president; T. J. Frericks, secretary, and E. L. Bush, treas-

500 4-H MEMBERS WILL VISIT MARION

Logan County Farm Boys, Girls, To Be Guests of City Wednesday.

Plans for the entertainment here next Wednesday of 500 boys and girls of Logan county 4-H clubs were nearing completion today. Miss Mary Kelly, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, announced.

R. M. Work of Bellefontaine, Logan county agriculture agent, was in Marion yesterday making arrangements for the visit, which is one of a series of annual trips taken by 4-H club members of that county.

The visitors will arrive at 9 a. m. and will be escorted through the city by police. Plans are made for a morning theater party at the Palace theater, after which the delegation will move to Garfield park for a picnic dinner.

Mayor L. Don Jones will address the group, which then will tour the city to points of interest including the Harding memorial. Among other features of the tour will be a trip through the factory of the Huber Manufacturing Co.

Lima Quarry Murders Now Classed as "One-Man Job"

NEW STORY

B. F. Brown, above, part-time Baptist preacher who told a sensational story of an attempted lynching after he had been found hanging in his church at Dallas, Tex., changed his story last night when he stepped into the pulpit and told the congregation that the lynching story was a hoax and that the attempted hanging was his own work.

"LYNCHING" FAKED, MINISTER REVEALS

Texas Man Tells Congregation Revised Story of Hanging in Church.

By United Press

DALLAS, Tex., June 20—Speaking from the same pulpit over which he was found hanging from a chandelier last Thursday, Rev. B. F. Brown, 30-year-old Baptist minister, confessed last night to his congregation that his story about four men trying to lynch him was a hoax.

"I intended to kill myself and then just couldn't do it when I was hanging there and looking death right in the face," he declared. The young minister's story of the "lynching" attracted nationwide attention.

To his congregation, assembled for a revival, Brown told in detail of how he entered the church at night, taped his own mouth, stripped off his clothes, climbed on a chair, hanged himself to the chandelier above the pulpit, kicked the chair—and then changed his mind.

Realizing, he said, that he slowly was strangling to death, he fought desperately, as the new rope stretched, he was able to rest his toes on the chair and keep life in his body until he was found hours later.

Wife Slayer Executed, Puts Blame on Liquor

By The Associated Press

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 20—Admitting his guilt and blaming liquor for his downfall, Frank Hyer, 55, Pocahontas county wife slayer, was hanged at the state prison here last night. He was decapitated. He went to his death calmly, walking with a firm step to the scaffold, while the prison quartet sang.

His final message just before the trap was sprung, was:

"Booze got me. I admit killing my wife. I have made peace with God and I am satisfied and ready to sacrifice my life."

WARS ON BURGLARS

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 20—Twenty-two times in recent years the store of Louis Hyland, Franklin Furnace, was robbed. During the robberies his burglar alarm functioned, and he shot six of the robbers, killing two. His latest victim gave the name of Oscar Mendenhall, 37, Dayton, whose legs were peppered with buckshot.

Fathers To Be Showered With Gifts and Attention

FATHER'S day. Another shower of gifts, and the poor man will be in agony for a year trying to sneak out of the house without his family seeing that he isn't wearing the neckties and shirts they gave him.

Sunday is the day set aside for honoring the Dads of the country. There should have been a clause put in somewhere that it's the one day of the year when he gets the morning paper first, is not asked a million times for money to go here or there or do this or that, and that he is permitted to sit around the house with his shoes off without the family going into hysterics.

Shirts and ties are the "right" thing for fathers on their special Sunday, if the sales of Marion haberdasheries are indicative of what's being bought. One store is advertising "practical" things for Dads, like shaving soap, toilet water, razor blades, safety razors, cigars, cigarets, and all the other things that he buys for himself every day of the year.

Father's day doesn't attract the universal attention that Mother's day does, but Father's don't seem to want the limelight. They're content to sit back and watch their womenfolk and children pile on the family glory.

But a gift, no matter how small or insignifcant, even a post card means a lot to Fathers, if they do receive them with a grunt and half-laugh of surprise that anyone thought of them.

FIND BODY OF SECOND VICTIM

Lima Police Follow Jealousy Clue After Truesdale Is Found Slain

ABANDON GANG THEORY

Quarry Caretaker and Former Admirer of Miss Woods Questioned

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., June 20—Police today redoubled their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the brutal murders of Earl Truesdale, 20, and Miss Thelma Woods, 17, whose bruised bodies, weighted down with stones, were recovered from an old quarry pool.

Police continued to question two men in the case—a caretaker who works near the pool and who found Truesdale's automobile blanket in the water, and James May of Lima, a former admirer of Miss Woods. May was a voluntary prisoner.

Truesdale's body, weighted down by stones in his trousers, which had been removed, was recovered late yesterday, when the water level, originally 80 feet, had been reduced to five feet. Doctors, after an examination, expressed the belief he was drowned after being rendered unconscious by blows on the back of his head.

Find Girl Week Ago

Miss Woods' body, with wounds on the back of the head and a large rock attached to it by a rope, was recovered from the pool a week ago. Doctors said the blows on the head were sufficient to have caused death.

After Truesdale's body was found, police abandoned a theory that a gang of drunken men or boys had killed the couple for a "thrill" and they now believe it was a "one-man job" prompted by jealousy.

Police were questioning Andrew May, brother of James, today. Members of the May family told authorities James could not have been involved in the crime because he was at home the night the couple disappeared, May 30. When first questioned, May told police he would willingly stay in their custody without a charge against him, until they cleared up the case. He claimed from the outset that Truesdale must have killed the girl and that when the police found Truesdale they would prove his innocence.

Attended Dance

Truesdale and Miss Woods, recent acquaintaces, went to a dance the night of Memorial day. They disappeared from the dance hall and were not again seen until their bodies were pulled from the quarry pool. Truesdale's body was in one end of the 200-yard wide pool, while Miss Wood's body was in the other end. Authorities said they believed Truesdale was killed first, and that the murderer, fearing Miss Woods would tell on him, killed her.

Police ordered the pool pumped out when Truesdale's automobile was found parked nearby.

BENDER ACQUITTED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Former State Senator Freed After Four-Hour Jury Deliberation

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., June 20—Former State Senator George H. Bender went back to his post as commissioner of Cleveland's new municipal stadium today, acquitted of charges of embezzlement and perjury.

A jury of four women and eight men last night decided he was neither guilty of embezzling $22,750 from the Constitutional Law Enforcement League of Ohio nor of perjury in filing an account of the league's expenditures with the secretary of state.

Bender organized the league in 1927 and was largely responsible for the defeat of the Marshall justice of the peace bill in a state referendum.

City Manager Daniel E. Morgan denied reports that he would remove Bender from the stadium position.

Cheers greeted the verdict as the jury reported at 8:20 p. m. after deliberating four hours.

Bender asserted that instead of gaining, he lost about $8,000 in the fight.

WILL FIGHT LOTTERIES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 20—A federal crusade against American participation in foreign sweepstake lotteries was announced today by Solicitor Donnelly of the postoffice department.

THREATENED

Patrick E. Crowley (above), president of the New York Central railroad, has been terrorized for the last few weeks by a succession of mysterious letters demanding $35,000 and threatening his life and the kidnaping of his two daughters. The railroad executive and his family are being closely guarded while authorities seek the author of the threats.

5 MARION PERSONS HURT IN ACCIDENT

Miss Josephine Forry in Clinic; Mother Hurt as Auto Turns Over.

Miss Josephine Forry of 235 south High street, teacher in the Marion Public schools is reported resting comfortably this morning from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Richwood yesterday afternoon.

Miss Forry was driving a sedan in which her mother, Mrs. Harry Forry and sisters and brother, Margaret, Dorothy, Fred and Jacqueline were riding. The left front tire blew out, turning over the machine. Miss Forry suffered a broken breast bone and severe bruises and Mrs. Forry's right arm was broken.

The baby, Jacqueline, held by Mrs. Forry escaped uninjured. Fred was cut on the face by flying glass, and Dorothy and Margaret also received minor cuts from glass.

Miss Forry and her mother were brought to the Frederick C. Smith clinic in a Richwood ambulance and Mrs. Forry later was released. Miss Forry remained at the clinic, where an X-ray of her injuries was taken this morning.

The family was coming to Marion from West Mansfield. The accident occurred about 2:30 p. m. Miss Forry is teacher of the seventh grade at the Glenwood school.

"SKIPPY" INJURED

Son of Percy Crosby, Cartoonist, Bitten by Snake.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 20—Percy ("Skippy") Crosby Jr., one-year-old son of the cartoonist, had a sore arm today. Yesterday a five-foot blacksnake entered the yard of the Crosby estate at McLean, in nearby Virginia, and bit the child on the arm. His father heard his screams and after sucking the poison from the wound, called a physician nad fired two bullets into the snake's head.

DO-X REACHES COAL

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 20—The German flying boat DO-X completed her long flight from Altenrhein, Switzerland, today, landing on the harbor at 12:56 p. m. (10:56 a. m., Marion time.)

Radio Mishap

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 20—Poor Mr. Hoover! If things ever do turn and start breaking right for him, he will be a good man to string with, for he ought to have a long streak of luck.

Of all the things that's gone against him the worst one happened this week. His speech run 15 minutes overtime, and he took up Amos' and Andy's time on the radio.

That was a vote loser sure enough. That did him more harm than even the Wickersham report.

I never saw radio fans so worked up. That will be a lesson to all Presidents.

Yours,

MERCURY HITS 94 DEGREES AS CITY SWELTERS

Marion Reports Second Official High Temperature in State

STORM MAY BRING RELIEF

Unofficial Thermometers in Columbus Registers 101 Degrees.

The season's first prolonged heat wave which boosted local thermometers to an official high of 94 yesterday, causing six Ohio deaths, continued with renewed vigor today. Marion, with all Ohio and, in fact, the entire middle west, virtually baked under a torrid sun.

The mercury stood at 93 at 1:30 p. m. today, and was expected to rise higher when the afternoon temperature reached its peak about 3:30 p. m. The temperature rose four degrees from 89 at noon today.

If local thundershowers forecast for tonight materialize, relief may be expected, followed by cooler weather Sunday, official forecasts indicated. A greater portion of the state is not expected to cool off for two or three days, Associated Press dispatches indicated.

Near Top

While the official 94 was within one degree of the high mark of the state, recorded in Cincinnati, no serious effects of the heat wave were felt locally. The heat induced heart attacks which caused the deaths of Samuel Davidson, 62, Cleveland deputy revenue collector, and David Nelson, 9, of Bellaire, who collapsed at play. Drownings, for which the heat is indirectly blamed, claimed Joseph Doughty, 20, in the Ohio river at Cincinnati, Warren Wilson, 27, in Lake Erie at Cleveland, Richard Myers, 10, in the Maumee river near Napoleon, and Richard Preston, 11, in the Muskingum river at Zanesville.

More than a dozen deaths throughout the middlewest were attributed to the effects of the heat. Prostrations were numerous.

Caddy Collapses

Eddie Berger, a Dayton caddy, collapsed while carrying clubs during the western open gold tournament but will recover. Other effects of the heat wave include an explosion of sewer gas, wrecking Cincinnati streets, and explosions of expanding pavements in a number of uptown Dayton streets.

At Columbus, an unofficial 101 was recorded at street levels, with an official high mark of 94. At Youngstown and Cleveland, similar readings were reported, which set an all-time record for June 19 in the latter city.

With the heat death toll steadily mounting, the middlewest sought relief at beaches. In Chicago alone, park officials estimated that 500,000 persons swarmed to 13 "closed" beaches which will open July 1. In northern Wisconsin, storms accompanied the heat wave, reaching gale proportions in some sections of the state.

Three Died in Detroit

Detroit reported three deaths and six prostrations were caused by the heat wave yesterday, with no relief in sight before Sunday.

In contract to the heat in the central section of the country, a storm was reported sweeping northern Canada. Forecasters predicted that relief eventually would come to the Chicago section from the storm.

Although rains and windstorms brought relief last night to sections of Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, the rest of the Mississippi valley was seared by temperatures that ranged from 95 to above the 100 mark.

Nightfall yesterday brought little relief for Marionites, who slept with the mercury above the 72 mark. A year ago, moderate temperatures prevailed, with a high of 81 and a low of 57 reported.

IT IS SUGGESTED seriously, in Washington that there is to be "re- of war debts," a pleasing euphemism, meaning, "Uncle Sam get his money."

The allies find they cannot get as much out of Germany as they Therefore, it seems logi- national, altogether desirable, to Uncle Sam: "Sorry, but won't pay what we borrowed you in the war."

If they say that, presumably that will settle it. Uncle Sam will charge it to experience and know better next time.

THE GOVERNMENT, by court decision, will not interfere with people making beer in their own homes, first buying the where- with. Those that sell a material that has no alcohol in it, but will develop alcohol quickly if you give it a chance, are within the law.

The brilliant and beautiful Mabel Willebrandt, who once enforced prohibition as assistant attorney general, now wins the right of her clients to sell an extract, nonalco- holic, that will in time produce a fairly good brand of wine.

Prohibition seems to be making a compromise with hypocrisy. You must not buy well-made beers that would agree with you, or well-made wines. But you may manufacture inferior stuff yourself and drink all you want of it.

THE LATEST PERPLEXING attack on the Catholic church comes from the state of Vera Cruz, that passes a law limiting the num- ber of priests in the state to one for 100,000 population. As there are three bishops in Vera Cruz, the number of priests will be limited to seven, whereas churches in the state, all Catholic, total 1,200. The bishop of Vera Cruz, Monsignor Guizar Valencia, declares that the churches will have to be closed. Anti-religious outbreaks in coun- tries almost 100 per cent Catholic are puzzling and bound to bring serious trouble. The antagonism is known to be political, promoted by a few ringleaders.

EXPECT YEAR'S LAYOFF IN WAR DEBT PAYMENT

Early Announcement Predicted Following Conferences at White House.

PROPOSAL GETS BACKING

Hoover Considers Move To Aid Germany and Help Break World Depression.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 20—Early announcement of a proposal to suspend all war debts and reparations payments for a year was expected from the White House as Democratic and Republican members of congress assured President Hoover today of their support.

The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, called at the treasury during the morning and conferred with Under Secretary Mills, acting chief during Secretary Mellon's absence in Europe.

Mr. Hoover talked with several senators last night and today over long distance telephone. Another who called at the White House during the day was Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts.

Senator Fletcher of Florida after talking with the President convinced him that Mr. Hoover's plans were the soundest that could be brought forth at this time.

"I am certain," he said, "that they will meet with support in congress."

Statement Expected

The talks with members of congress will continue into next week. Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, is being awaited. Meanwhile, the President was said at the White House today to be contemplating the early issuance of a comprehensive statement on the whole question.

One of the callers at the presidential offices today was Senator Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina. Ogden Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, also was there at the time and left shortly.

After several discussions yesterday, the President issued this statement:

"Since my return from the Cen-

HOOVER'S ACTION BOOSTS STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 20 — President Hoover's announcement that plans were afoot to help the economic recovery, particularly in Germany, sent security prices rallying today, on the New York Stock exchange as well as the Berlin boerse.

The rise in share quotations here approached in vigor the upturn in June 3, for numerous important issues were up $5 or $6. Shorts who had been following the slow decline earlier in the week were completely surprised and scampered to cover when the rally, after a quiet first half-hour, finally showed that it meant business.

Bonds, particularly German obligations, were strong, the so-called Young plan 5½s, rose more than $20 per $1,000 bond and there was a gain of similar size in the government 7s.

COUNTY GETS 30-DAY EXTENSION ON TAXES

Deadline for June Payments Moved Up to July 20. Treasurer States.

The deadline for the payment of June taxes has been extended 30 days to July 20, County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton announced this morning.

The extension was made with the consent of both the Ohio tax commission and the board of Marion county commissioners. Both boards were approached regarding the extension, as there is some uncertainty as to which group has authority to extend the time.

Hitherto, the power to make extension belonged to the county commissioners, but a recent bill passed by the legislature takes that power from the local boards, vesting it with the state tax commission.

The deadline for collection of June taxes, subject to extension, was reached today, with $96,564.86 in the treasury, Shelton reported. The June collection is expected to reach approximately $1,000,000.

U. S. ENVOY DIES

Ralph H. Booth, Minister to Denmark, Victim of Heart Ailment.

By The Associated Press

VIENNA, June 20—Ralph H. Booth, editor and publisher and United States minister to Denmark, died today at Bad-Gastein, Salzburg, Austria. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Booth went to Bad-Gastein several weeks ago to undergo treatment for a heart ailment. There he was joined by Mrs. Booth, his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Dickerman Vogel, and his son, John Lord Booth.

The minister had been in ill health since last December when he suffered an attack of influenza.

WORRIED

Peter Arno (above), New York cartoonist, asked for protection against Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who he said threatened to do him "bodily harm." Chief of Police J. M. Kirkley of Reno, Nev., reported Vanderbilt, who yesterday sued his wife for divorce, said the gun he is reported to have carried while out looking for Arno because of alleged attention paid Mrs. Vanderbilt, was not loaded.

FIVE PILOTS ARE PUNISHED

License of One Revoked; Others To Be Fined for Disturbing Dedication Here.

AVIATORS SEND APOLOGIES

Amelia Earhart Putnam Reprimanded Following Crash of Plane in Texas.

Punishment was meted out by the national department of commerce yesterday to five pilots whose planes disturbed the dedicatory program at the Harding Memorial Tuesday, Associated Press dispatches from Washington today disclosed.

At the same time, the commerce department reprimanded Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, one of the country's distinguished woman aviators, for aerial misbehavior in the crash of her autogyro two weeks ago at Abilene, Tex.

The license of Frank Byerley of Detroit, Mich., believed to have been the pilot of an autogyro belonging to the Detroit News, was suspended for 60 days, and penalties of fines were determined upon for John C. Corrodi, Joseph C. Mackey, Harold Distelhorst and Grant C. Melvin of Cleveland. The amount of the fines has not yet been fixed.

All Suspended

All planes hovering over the memorial during the dedication were chartered to carry aerial photographs of the dedication to newspapers in various parts of Ohio.

The five pilots have been under temporary suspension while an investigation was being made this week by H. F. Rough of Detroit, aeronautics inspector of the Detroit aviation branch of the department of commerce. The penalties were fixed by Secretary Lamont after he had received Rough's detailed report of the incident.

Secretary Lamont yesterday said

ANOTHER RECORD

Canadian Flier Is First To Cross English Channel in Glider.

By The Associated Press

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, June 20—Lieut. Lissant Beardmore, Canadian flier, inventor and opera singer, today held the distinction of being the first person to cross the English channel in a glider.

Starting at Lympne airdrome, England, yesterday, he rose to a height of 22,000 feet behind an airplane and cast off. He headed northward, gradually edging toward the sea, and sailed toward the French coast at a rate of 60 miles an hour. He landed at Stinglevert airdrome near Calais.

Lieut. Beardmore stole a march on six other men, who intended to compete today for a $5,000 prize offered by a London newspaper for a flight across the channel and back.

Lieut. Beardmore is 54 years old and a native of Toronto.

DRIVE FAILURE TO CLOSE TWO RELIEF GROUPS

Red Cross and Family Welfare To Suspend Operations for Summer.

AGENCIES LACK MONEY

To Save Funds for Winter, When Demands for Aid Will Be Greater.

Failure of the Marion Community Fund to reach the prescribed goal, made itself felt again today when it was announced that both the Red Cross and the Family Welfare society would suspend operations for a part of the summer.

The Family Welfare society, it was announced by H. B. Walker, newly elected president, will close July 3 to remain closed until Aug. 17 while the Red Cross, it was announced by Miss Margaret Dowd, secretary, would close on July 6 to remain closed until Aug. 6.

Lack Funds

Lack of funds was given as the reason for the closing by the representatives of both organizations.

While the Red Cross headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. will be closed, one nurse will continue to work, it was announced by Florence Spaulding, supervising nurse. She will work out of the office of Health Commissioner Dr. N. Sifritt and will continue to carry on the work as far as possible. The closing will not effect the work of Miss Alma Denney, tuberculosis nurse, who also works out of the health commissioner's office. The expenses for this work coming from the Christmas Seal fund.

"When it became evident that we would not have sufficient money to carry out regular program," Miss Dowd said this morning, "we concluded that the summer would be the best time to suspend operations. It will be necessary to conserve at every point if we are to have enough money to carry out our work next winter."

A similar opinion was expressed by Mrs. Jane Alexander, managing secretary of the Family Welfare society. "We would not have sufficient money to operate the entire year and believe this to be the best time to close."

Announce Officers

The newly elected officers together with the committees who will function during the coming year were also announced at the welfare office.

The officers, who were elected at a recent meeting are H. B. Walker, president; T. J. Frericks, secretary, and E. L. Bush, treas-

500 4-H MEMBERS WILL VISIT MARION

Logan County Farm Boys, Girls, To Be Guests of City Wednesday.

Plans for the entertainment here next Wednesday of 500 boys and girls of Logan county 4-H clubs were nearing completion today, Miss Mary Kelly, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, announced.

R. M. Work of Bellefontaine, Logan county agriculture agent, was in Marion yesterday making arrangements for the visit, which is one of a series of annual trips taken by 4-H club members of that county.

The visitors will arrive at 9 a. m. and will be escorted through the city by police. Plans are made for a morning theater party at the Palace theater, after which the delegation will move to Garfield park for a picnic dinner.

Mayor L. Don Jones will address the group, which then will tour the city to points of interest including the Harding memorial. Among other features of the tour will be a trip through the factory of the Huber Manufacturing Co.

Lima Quarry Murders Now Classed as "One-Man Job"

NEW STORY

B. P. Brown, above, part-time Baptist preacher who told a sensational story of an attempted lynching after he had been found hanging in his church at Dallas, Tex., changed his story last night when he stepped into the pulpit and told the congregation that the lynching story was a hoax and that the attempted hanging was his own work.

"LYNCHING" FAKED, MINISTER REVEALS

Texas Man Tells Congregation Revised Story of Hanging in Church.

By United Press

DALLAS, Tex., June 20—Speaking from the same pulpit over which he was found hanging from a chandelier last Thursday, Rev. B. P. Brown, 30-year-old Baptist minister, confessed last night to his congregation that his story about four men trying to lynch him was a hoax.

"I intended to kill myself and then just couldn't do it when I was hanging there and looking death right in the face," he declared. The young minister's story of the "lynching" attracted nationwide attention.

To his congregation, assembled for a revival, Brown told in detail of how he entered the church at night, taped his own mouth, stripped off his clothes, climbed on a chair, hanged himself to the chandelier above the pulpit, kicked the chair—and then changed his mind.

Realizing, he said, that he slowly was strangling to death, he fought desperately, as the new rope stretched, he was able to rest his toes on the chair and keep life in his body until he was found hours later.

Wife Slayer Executed, Puts Blame on Liquor

By The Associated Press

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 20—Admitting his guilt and blaming liquor for his downfall, Frank Hyer, 55, Pocahontas county wife slayer, was hanged at the state prison here last night. He was decapitated. He went to his death calmly, walking with a firm step to the scaffold, while the prison quartet sang.

His final message, just before the trap was sprung, was:

"Booze got me. I admit killing my wife. I have made peace with God and I am satisfied and ready to sacrifice my life."

WARS ON BURGLARS

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 20—Twenty-two times in recent years the store of Louis Hyland, Franklin Furnace, was robbed. During the robberies his burglar alarm functioned, and he shot six of the robbers, killing two. His latest victim gave the name of Oscar Mendenhall, 37, Dayton, whose legs were peppered with buckshot.

FIND BODY OF SECOND VICTIM

Lima Police Follow Jealousy Clue After Truesdale Is Found Slain

ABANDON GANG THEORY

Quarry Caretaker and Former Admirer of Miss Woods Questioned

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., June 20—Police today redoubled their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the brutal murders of Earl Truesdale, 20, and Miss Thelma Woods, 17, whose bruised bodies, weighted down with stones, were recovered from an old quarry pool.

Police continued to question two men in the case—a caretaker who works near the pool and who found Truesdale's automobile blanket in the water, and James May of Lima, a former admirer of Miss Woods. May was a voluntary prisoner.

Truesdale's body, weighted down by stones in his trousers, which had been removed, was recovered late yesterday, when the water level, originally 80 feet, had been reduced to five feet. Doctors, after an examination, expressed the belief he was drowned after being rendered unconscious by blows on the back of his head.

Find Girl Week Ago

Miss Woods' body, with wounds on the back of the head and a large rock attached to it by a rope, was recovered from the pool a week ago. Doctors said the blows on the head were sufficient to have caused death.

After Truesdale's body was found, police abandoned a theory that a gang of drunken men or boys had killed the couple for a "thrill" and they now believe it was a "one-man job" prompted by jealousy.

Police were questioning Andrew May, brother of James, today. Members of the May family told authorities James could not have been involved in the crime because he was at home the night the couple disappeared, May 30. When first questioned, May told police he would willingly stay in their custody without a charge against him, until they cleared up the case. He claimed from the outset that Truesdale must have killed the girl and that when the police found Truesdale they would prove his innocence.

Attended Dance

Truesdale and Miss Woods, recent acquaintances, went to a dance the night of Memorial day. They disappeared from the dance hall and were not again seen until their bodies were pulled from the quarry pool. Truesdale's body was in one end of the 200-yard wide pool, while Miss Wood's body was in the other end. Authorities said they believed Truesdale was killed first, and that the murderer, fearing Miss Woods would tell on him, killed her.

Police ordered the pool pumped out when Truesdale's automobile was found parked nearby.

BENDER ACQUITTED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Former State Senator Freed After Four-Hour Jury Deliberation

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., June 20—Former State Senator George H. Bender went back to his post as commissioner of Cleveland's new municipal stadium today, acquitted of charges of embezzlement and perjury.

A jury of four women and eight men last night decided he was neither guilty of embezzling $22,750 from the Constitutional Law Enforcement League of Ohio nor of perjury in filing an account of the league's expenditures with the secretary of state.

Bender organized the league in 1927 and was largely responsible for the defeat of the Marshall justice of the peace bill in a state referendum.

City Manager Daniel E. Morgan denied reports that he would remove Bender from the stadium position.

Cheers greeted the verdict as the jury reported at 8:20 p. m. after deliberating four hours.

Bender asserted that instead of gaining, he lost about $8,000 in the fight.

WILL FIGHT LOTTERIES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 20—A federal crusade against American participation in foreign sweepstake lotteries was announced today by Solicitor Donnelly of the postoffice department.

THREATENED

Patrick E. Crowley (above), president of the New York Central railroad, has been terrorized for the last few weeks by a succession of mysterious letters demanding $25,000 and threatening his life and the kidnaping of his two daughters. The railroad executive and his family are being closely guarded while authorities seek the author of the threats.

5 MARION PERSONS HURT IN ACCIDENT

Miss Josephine Forry in Clinic; Mother Hurt as Auto Turns Over.

Miss Josephine Forry of 235 south High street, teacher in the Marion Public schools is reported resting comfortably this morning from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Richwood yesterday afternoon.

Miss Forry was driving a sedan in which her mother, Mrs. Harry Forry and sisters and brother, Margaret, Dorothy, Fred and Jacqueline were riding. The left front tire blew out, turning over the machine. Miss Forry suffered a broken breast bone and severe bruises and Mrs. Forry's right arm was broken.

The baby, Jacqueline, held by Mrs. Forry escaped uninjured. Fred was cut on the face by flying glass, and Dorothy and Margaret also received minor cuts from glass.

Miss Forry and her mother were brought to the Frederick C. Smith clinic in a Richwood ambulance and Mrs. Forry later was released. Miss Forry remained at the clinic, where an X-ray of her injuries was taken this morning.

The family was coming to Marion from West Mansfield. The accident occurred about 3:30 p. m. Miss Forry is teacher of the seventh grade at the Glenwood school.

"SKIPPY" INJURED

Son of Percy Crosby, Cartoonist, Bitten by Snake.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 20—Percy ("Skippy") Crosby Jr., one-year-old son of the cartoonist, had a sore arm today. Yesterday a five-foot blacksnake entered the yard of the Crosby estate at McLean, in nearby Virginia, and bit the child on the arm. His father heard his screams and after sucking the poison from the wound, called a physician nad fired two bullets into the snake's head.

MERCURY HITS 94 DEGREES AS CITY SWELTERS

Marion Reports Second Official High Temperature in State

STORM MAY BRING RELIEF

Unofficial Thermometers in Columbus Registers 101 Degrees.

The season's first prolonged heat wave which boosted local thermometers to an official high of 94 yesterday, causing six Ohio deaths, continued with renewed vigor today. Marion, with all Ohio and, in fact, the entire middle west, virtually baked under a torrid sun.

The mercury stood at 93 at 1:50 p. m. today, and was expected to rise higher when the afternoon temperature reached its peak about 3:30 p. m. The temperature rose four degrees from 89 at noon today.

If local thundershowers forecast for tonight materialize, relief may be expected, followed by cooler weather Sunday, official forecasts indicated. A greater portion of the state is not expected to cool off for two or three days, Associated Press dispatches indicated.

Near Top

While the official 94 was within one degree of the high mark of the state, recorded in Cincinnati, no serious effects of the heat wave were felt locally. The heat induced heart attacks which caused the deaths of Samuel Davidson, 68, Cleveland deputy revenue collector, and David Nelson, 9, of Bellaire, who collapsed at play. Drownings, for which the heat is indirectly blamed, claimed Joseph Doughty, 20, in the Ohio river at Cincinnati, Warren Wilson, 27, in Lake Erie at Cleveland, Richard Myers, 10, in the Maumee river near Napoleon, and Richard Preston, 11, in the Muskingum river at Zanesville.

More than a dozen deaths throughout the middlewest were attributed to the effects of the heat. Prostrations were numerous.

Caddy Collapses

Eddie Berger, a Dayton caddy, collapsed while carrying clubs during the western open gold tournament but will recover. Other effects of the heat wave include an explosion of sewer gas, wrecking Cincinnati streets, and explosions of expanding pavements in a number of uptown Dayton streets.

At Columbus, an unofficial 101 was recorded at street levels, with an official high mark of 94. At Youngstown and Cleveland, similar readings were reported, which set an all-time record for June 19 in the latter city.

With the heat death toll steadily mounting, the middlewest sought relief at beaches. In Chicago alone, park officials estimated that 500,000 persons swarmed to 13 "closed" beaches which will open July 1. In northern Wisconsin, storms accompanied the heat wave, reaching gale proportions in some sections of the state.

Three Died in Detroit

Detroit reported three deaths and six prostrations were caused by the heat wave yesterday, with no relief in sight before Sunday.

In contrast to the heat in the central section of the country, a storm was reported sweeping northern Canada. Forecasters predicted that relief eventually would come to the Chicago section from the storm.

Although rains and windstorms brought relief last night to sections of Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, the rest of the Mississippi valley was seared by temperatures that ranged from 96 to above the 100 mark.

Nightfall yesterday brought little relief for Marionites, who slept with the mercury above the 72 mark. A year ago, moderate temperatures prevailed, with a high of 81 and a low of 57 reported.

Damaging Storm Hits Hardin County

By International News Service

KENTON, O., June 20—Thousands of dollars in damage were reported as the toll of a severe wind and hail storm which suddenly lashed its way through western Hardin county early today, wrenching orchard trees from their rootings and flattening many acres of wheat ready for harvest.

Heavy rain in the onion marsh lands brought much damage to the onion crops, extensively cultivated in this section.

American and Jap Vessels in Collision

By International News Service

LONDON, June 20—The American freighter Bellingham was in collision today with the Japanese freighter Koyu Maru 15 miles south of Choshi Point, Japan, it was stated in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokyo.

The Koyu Maru was reported badly damaged and sinking slowly. The Bellingham, which sustained slight damage, continued to Yokohama under her own power.

Fathers To Be Showered With Gifts and Attention

FATHER'S day. Another shower of gifts, and the poor man will be in agony for a year trying to sneak out of the house without his family seeing that he isn't wearing the neckties and shirts they gave him.

Sunday is the day set aside for honoring the Dads of the country. There should have been a clause put in somewhere that it's the one day of the year when he gets the morning paper first, is not asked a million times for money to go here or there or do this or that, and that he is permitted to sit around the house with his shoes off without the family going into hysterics.

Shirts and ties are the "right" thing for fathers on their special Sunday, if the sales of Marion haberdasheries are indicative of what's being bought. One store is advertising "practical" things for Dads, like shaving soap, toilet water, razor blades, safety razors, cigars, cigarets, and all the other things that he buys for himself every day of the year.

Father's day doesn't attract the universal attention that Mother's day does, but Father's don't seem to want the limelight. They're content to sit back and watch their womenfolk and children pile on the family glory.

But a gift, no matter how small or insignifcant, even a post card means a lot to Fathers, if they do receive them with a grunt and half-laugh of surprise that anyone thought of them.

Radio Mishap

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 20—Poor Mr. Hoover! If things ever do turn and start breaking right for him, he will be a good man to string with, for he ought to have a long streak of luck.

Of all the things that's gone against him the worst one happened this week. His speech run 15 minutes overtime, and he took up Amos' and Andy's time on the radio.

That was a vote loser sure enough. That did him more harm than even the Wickersham report.

I never saw radio fans so worked up. That will be a lesson to all Presidents.

AWAIT HOOVER PLAN TO HELP GERMANY

Seen as Possible Next Step In Efforts To Combat World Business Slump.

tral West yesterday I have conferred with those leaders of both political parties who are present in Washington with respect to certain steps which we might take to assist in economic recovery both here and abroad

Calls Response Gratifying

"These conversations have been particularly directed to strengthening the situation in Germany. No definite plans or conclusions have yet been arrived at, but the response which I have met from the leaders of both parties is most gratifying. Any statement or plan or method is wholly speculative and is not warranted by the facts."

Despite that warning there was, of course speculation Among steps which some persisted might be taken to help Germany were a moratorium of war debts and reparations and a loan to help Germany through her financial straits

Germany's recent cry that the burden of reparations payments was intolerable already had revived discussions of the fact that under the Young plan she might suspend the major portion of reparations payments for two years.

Provisions for a similar suspension were made in the war debt settlements negotiated with the United States

Revision Asked

That Germany wants a change in the situation has been indicated by developments followed her appeal for revision of the Young plan, which calls for payment this year of more than $425,000,000.

German government leaders have conferred with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson in England, and the English statesmen are going to Berlin soon for further discussions

Among those who participated in the conferences yesterday were Senators Glass of Virginia, Walsh of Montana, and King of Utah, Democrats, and Reed of Pennsylvania, and Bingham of Connecticut, Republicans.

LONDON EXCITED

Newspapers Give Prominence to Statement of Hoover.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 20 — President Hoover's statement that the United States is interested in strengthening the economic situation in Europe created a sensation in London today and added interest to the presence of Secretary Mellon.

Newspapers featured the news under arresting headlines, indicating they considered any action taken by the United States would have far-reaching consequences.

The Daily Mail took the view that there are numerous persons here who persist in regarding the American policy respecting war debts as ungenerous and Great Britain's policy in undertaking repayments as at best quixotic If ever the United States consents to the readjustment of debts, said the Mail, it will be for its own salvation and not as an act of generosity.

The world is becoming frightened and the United States is certainly not the least scared of the nations" the Mail continued, "just as there came a time in the World war when the allies had to sink personal differences or lose everything, so now there is drawing near a new conception of what really menaces the family of nations and how it should be met."

GERMANY CHEERED

News from U. S. Arouses Spirits of Nation's Leaders.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, June 20—President Hoover's assumption of the initiative in the attempt to assist Germany was greeted with warmest appreciation today in German political and official circles, as the full significance of somewhat meager press reports from Washington was realized. When the cabinet convened at noon there was a spirit of buoyancy which has been unknown in recent weeks.

Previous to the cabinet meeting official comment was reserved This apparently was caused by the fact that Germany often has entertained hopes which afterward failed to materialize.

However, as dispatches arrived from London to Washington it was accepted generally that something of far reaching importance had been started by President Hoover.

N. Y. FINANCIAL HEADS CONVICTED

Trio Found Guilty in Largest Bank Closing in History of Country.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 20—Three of the four officials of the closed Bank of the United States, on trial for 12 weeks on charges of misapplying funds, were convicted today by a county jury. The jury disagreed on Henry W. Pollock, head of the bank's legal department.

Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank, Saul Singer, vice president, and his son, Herbert Singer, a clerk, were convicted.

The four were specifically charged with misapplying the funds of the Municipal Safe Deposit company, a subsidiary of the bank, by using $8,000,000 of its money in another transaction.

Marcus, who a year ago had been hailed as a financial wizard, was removed to Tombs prison with the Singers after the verdicts were announced. Sentence will be passed Tuesday. The maximum penalty is seven years in prison, a fine of $1,000 or both.

The trial culminated five months of investigation by state and county authorities into the largest bank closing in the history of the United States. The bank was not connected with the government despite its name.

Its last statement showed resources of $254,000,000 and deposits of $202,000,000.

Pounding Seas Check Progress of Wilkins' Sub

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 20—The battered polar submarine Nautilus has not yet seen the end of even her immediate difficulties.

First dead engines forced her commander, Sir Hubert Wilkins, to call for aid. The battleship Wyoming took the undersea craft in tow and more trouble followed The Wyoming informed the navy last night that heavy seas had stopped both vessels about 240 miles from Queenstown, Ireland, where the damage is to be repaired.

The Wyoming's message said Nautilus stopped since noon. Battered down. Not communicating Saving battery. Trouble with fuel oil and air compressors. Starboard engine, port motor periscope damaged beyond ship repair. Bridge and bow towing ring gone Crew working to start port engine. Sea rough."

From Queenstown, the submersible was to proceed to Spitzbergen for the North Pole trip. Sir Hubert had said he expected the trans - Atlantic crossing, begun from Provincetown, Mass., on June 4 to be one of the most hazardous portions of the voyage.

Ceremonies For Lost Fishermen

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

The fisherfolk of Brittany have a quaint and touching custom for keeping alive the memory of those poor sailors of whom the sea, each year takes its heavy toll.

On receiving the news that a fisherman has been drowned, the parents or nearest relatives construct a cross of wood which they place on the empty bed or on the family table, surrounded by lighted candles.

Prayers are said, and friends and relatives are summoned to pass the night in the house. On the following day, a procession is formed and the cross is carried to the church, where services are held. Later, the cross is buried

Fortunate are those of us who may have their departed loved ones at home with them—where the last tender rites may be performed in actuality—and where the comforting assistance and efficient services of an experienced funeral director are always at hand!

Marion Pastor Bases Sermon on Dedication

Comparison Between Preparations for Coming of Lord and Plans Marion Made for Visit of President for Memorial Ceremonies.

A dedication of the Harding Memorial Tuesday was the occasion for a special sermon by Rev. Carl [illegible], pastor of First United Brethren church, Sunday morning, using the text from Isaiah, 40:4

"Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted and every mountain and hill shall be made low and the crooked shall be made straight and the rough places plain, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed." Rev. Roop delivered his sermon, excerpts of which are given below

"These eloquent words of the inspired prophet, have been heard for nearly 3,000 years, and today they are reemphasized by a million voices, to multiplied millions of people. Prepare ye the way of the Lord for he is coming to earth again.

"Very recently our city prepared for the coming of the President and the most distinguished men of the nation for the dedication service of the memorial for Marion's illustrious son and fallen hero, Warren G. Harding. How we prepared for this outstanding event, and the visit of these famous Magi from the East. The cleanup campaign; the making smooth of rough streets; the beautifying of lawns; the decoration of homes; the making straight of crooked places. Genuine effort, general enthusiasm, great earnestness predominated and prevailed in preparing the way of the city for the coming of the President.

"We should have a new valuation and appreciation of the words of Isaiah; 'Prepare ye the way of the Lord,' reinforced by all of the prophets, reechoed by John the Baptist and reemphasized by priest and preacher, make straight the paths of sin, fill in the valleys of doubt and disobedience, make low the mountains and hills of transgression, make plain the rough places of inquity. Prepare ye the way for the coming of the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords.

"However, before the Lord will come, there must be a moral cleansing of society, before a visitation of the Heavenly Guest, there must be a rededication of life; before the advent of His Sovereign Majesty there must be a readjustment of the economic and ethical conditions; before the triumphal entry of the Lord of hosts there must be unity and peace and expectancy; before the divine intervention of pentecostal power, there must be a surrender of selfishness brought on the wheels of earnest prayer and consecration; before victory comes over the crosses of life, there must be agonizing in the Gardens of Gethsemane. Divine blessings will not come to any people until they are prepared, with a sober and sincere and spiritual citizenship.

"Preparing the way for the coming of the Lord, in which the church must take the initiative and assume the role of leadership, is no easy task. A cold theology can never take the place of a warm evangelism; a bold and persistant indifference will not supplant a required spiritual responsibility; an exalted intellectualism cannot suffice for the fear of God and moral sincerity; the feet of observation and maternalism cannot walk for faith and affection. There must be an honest and intelligent recognition of the world of difference between atheism and reality; between infidelity and revelation, between communism and devotion.

"May we have wonderful peace within that the mountains of strife without will be demolished; may we follow truth and virtue that the valleys of hyprocracy and vice may be destroyed. May we so dedicate our lives to the Lord that the crooked places made by the archenemy of the soul will be made straight, may our devotions be so spiritualized that the rough places of formalism and sham will be made smooth and thus prepare a highway for the Lord in the desert of our hearts, for His coming to live with us, that we may dwell with Him for ever more, and His Glory be revealed."

CITY LIGHTS BACK AT OHIO

Charles Chaplin's sensational hit, "City Lights" returns to Marion to play at the Ohio Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Chaplin was the only producer in Hollywood who didn't succumb to the talkies, although he did permit sound accompaniment to make possible some of the most screamingly funny sequences, including the now-famous "whistle scene" in which he swallows a whistle.

Speeder Fined $10 For Reckless Driving

H. Hildreth of 369 west Columbia street was fined $10 and costs by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin when he pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge. Hildreth was arrested by Police Chief Marks for driving at a high rate of speed on east Church street. The arrest was the result of a campaign being waged by Chief Marks on speeders in various parts of the city.

VISIT FOX FARM

A. B. Firstenberger, E. J. Knofler and W. C. Ulmer have returned from a trip through Michigan. One of the features of the trip was a visit to the Crystal Lake in Michigan, a popular tourist resort, and the Crystal Silver Fox ranch, which borders on the lake. They were the guests of Justus E. GRANGES OF FOUR COUNTIES IN MEET

District Declamatory Contest To Be Held at Mt. Zion Aug. 16.

A district declamatory contest in which representatives of granges in four counties will participate will be held at the Mt. Zion centralized school house in Crawford county, 12 miles north of Marion, on the night of Aug. 16, E. A. Williams, deputy grange master for Marion county, and the head of the Marion county contest, announced today.

Decision to hold the district meet at Mt. Zion was made Thursday night when representatives of the four interested counties met with Williams at his home north of here

A state grange speaker and other features from each contesting county will also appear on the program of the district contest, Williams announced Detailed plans for the program have not yet been completed.

The Marion county contest in which representatives of the 12 subordinate granges in the county will compete to determine who will represent this county in the district match, will be held the night of July 11 at the Claridon school

At the meeting Thursday night Marion county was represented by Williams, Crawford county by Mr and Mrs. Harry Worden of Crestline, Wyandot county by H. E Harmon of Upper Sandusky, and Morrow county by Ward Peoples of Mt. Gilead.

Pear Tree Here Does Double Duty for Owner

A PEAR tree bearing its second crop of blossoms, is attracting considerable attention at the farm home of William Hull in Pleasant township.

Intermingled with the blossoms are pears nearly as large as an egg. The tree is of the Keiffer variety and is the offshoot of an old tree which died several years ago. A fruit tree bearing both fruit and blossoms at the same time is a rare occurrence, according to fruit growers

God's Final Message

A SERMONETTE

DR. JOSEPH OWEN
Evangelist at Evangelical Camp Meeting

Text: God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spoke in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son.—Heb. 1:1-2.

* * *

THESE WORDS make fitting introduction to a remarkable New Testament epistle They focus attention upon the central figure of the epistle They anticipate its comparisons. They suggest that all the truths of divine revelation belonging to the past have been gathered up united and completed in the message of the divine Father spoken through the divine Son When the sun appears on a cloudless day, following the bright shining of the stars on a cloudless night, he gathers up and flows about the shining of the stars with his own brightness and effulgence till the stars are no longer visible So does the revelation given to us in Jesus so complete and fulfill the promise and hope of the past that it becomes full, final and abiding. Let me suggest in brief outline some great truths on which God has spoken His last word through His son.

The first has to do with the wealth of the divine concern.

All the messages sent by God through priest or lawgiver or prophet have borne witness to God's infinite interest. They Reveal ways in which God has been making known His solicitude. God could not remain aloof from the need seen and the object loved and impress our world with the genuineness and reality of His love. God has commissioned men to declare his redemption concern. By such means He sought to make known to men the need of it, to inspire in men the hope of it and to communicate to men the promise and certainty of it across waiting centuries When Jesus came He spelled that message out in letters that are crimson with a divine passion and proclaimed it in words that glowed with a divine fire.

Then, God makes known through the son the willingness of the divine giving He called the prophets. He commissioned them as His representatives. He sent them to the people He gave His son He is no longer represented as one sending representatives to us He is with us, among us, releasing, giving, proving Himself out.

We are accustomed to thinking of God's giving as having reference to the sacrifice on the cross alone. The whole program of human redemption was one of continuous and costly giving He gave in the incarnation Jesus gave of His healing virtue as the touch of the crowd was upon Him. He gave in the garden when the shadows were heavy, the night was chill, His disciples were sleeping and on brow and temple and face were crimson sweat drops. He gave himself for us on the cross Giving can be no more costly than that. Calvary becomes God's final word on the willingness of the divine giving

Growing out of all that we have said, we are able now to see that in Jesus God's final message on the wonder of the divine provision is spoken. He that spared not His own Son but delivered Him up for us all, will, with Him freely give us all things The gift of Jesus is the divine guarantee that what we need of grace to transform, of power to live, and of preparation to serve are abundantly ours for time and for eternity.

The hour broadcast will be heard from the civic auditorium in San Francisco, over the NBC-WJZ network at 11:30 p. m.

• • •

IT'S A FACT—

Harveth Wells, author and explorer, who debunks big game hunting in hilarious talks over the NBC-WEAF network on Sundays, is a Cornishman of Britain. His ancestors is famed. Recently, an admiring fan wrote that she enjoyed his "Polish Accent."

• • •

Another season of new programs has come to radio. One of the new features is to be a weekly series on the Columbia Chain in which Tascha Seidel, violinist, Theo Karle, tenor, The Song Birds Quartet and Sam Lanin's orchestra will appear. It is to be a Friday night broadcast to be known as the Pageant beginning July 17.

Another new feature will be the Don Hall Rose Trio, instrumental and vocal with WTAM. It will be heard on the NBC-WJZ chain tonight and next Saturday, and on the WEAF circuit June 23 and 30.

The Stars Say--

For Sunday, June 21

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds portent of many personal anxieties or disturbances, possibly involving a spiritual or emotional crisis which may be keenly felt. A sign of rash, reckless, peculiar and impetuous conduct enjoins restraint, equanimity and well-guarded actions. There may be sudden gains trough writings or letters.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of peculiar disruptions and emotional disturbances, involving the private as well as the business life. Letters, writings and contracts benefit unexpectedly. Strict personal control of speech, temper and sudden impulses are enjoined.

A child born on this day should be mentally alert and versatile, but may have singular impulses and proclivities having sinister emotional or psychic disturbances. It should be given rigid training in self-control and the conventional amentities.

• • •

For Monday, June 22

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is encouraging for those engaged in real estate or property transactions, or for industry, mining, agriculture and labor. But particular precaution is urged in signing all legal papers, writings, loans, etc. The day may be notable for the removal of a long-standing obstacle or impediment.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which old obstacles and frustrating circumstances will be removed, to make way for definite progress, especially in real possessions, in labor, industry, mining and kindred stable connections. But there is need of precaution in handling all writings and documents.

A child born on this day should be studious, diligent and responsible and should attain a substantial place in life through its own efforts and the favor of elders. It should be advised to be careful in signing all writings and in litigation.

The Polish government is planning to establish direct radio telephone connection with Sweden or Denmark.

FRENCH COMEDIAN

START SURVEY ON HIGHWAY PROJECT

County Surveyor Leavens Gathers Data on State Project.

Marion evidently is in line for another state road improvement this year. The state highway department has ordered County Surveyor to begin a survey of a section of route 23, the Marion-Upper Sandusky road, from its junction with the Bucyrus road north of here to the county line.

Although the nature of the improvement has not been made known, it is believed that a widening project is being considered for that section of the route.

The survey began today.

Plans for the improvement of Harding Highway between Big Island and Meeker have been submitted to the state highway department for approval. Lot D. Jones of the highway department who for several weeks has been preparing the set of plans for the project in the office of County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens, completed the task this week.

Chic Star Patterns

Practical and Simple

Distinctive Frock.

Pattern 2148

A soft, graceful collar enhances this lovely sleeveless dress. The flared skirt, formed of seamed panels, joins the bodice in shallow scallops that are very smart. Tiny vertical tucks at the waistline, holds the bodice fullness snugly to the figure so the belt may be omitted if you wish. Pattern 2148 is charming made of chiffon, georgette, voile, silk crepe or batiste. Pastel prints, bright prints and solid pastels are equally smart this season.

Obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Any way one looks at the thing, the case of the part-time preacher hanged by four masked men over the pulpit of a North Dallas, Texas, church goes to carry the conviction that some Texans are taking religion far too seriously.

Big city beer gangsters are almost falling over each other in their anxiety to square up with Uncle Sam on their income taxes, which gives us another line on the outstanding effect of the Capone case. A few more like it, and that predicted deficit of $900,000,000 may be considerably lessened.

"Babson Stakes Reputation on Trade Revival"—Headline. We haven't even so much as a bowing acquaintance with Roger, but as a well-wisher of the country, let us hope that he doesn't wake up some morning to find his reputation gone.

That Baptist colored minister of Washington who recently preached continuously for thirteen hours isn't so much. A few days ago Dr. A. F. Futtner, president of the Hollywood Bible Knowledge society, established a new world record by preaching from 6 o'clock one morning to 2 o'clock the next without stopping. And thus the great cause of the Christian church is advanced—if one is reckless regarding his statements.

"Woman Gang Leader Keeps the Code of Gangland," reads a headline over a Hoosier story to the effect that, though badly wounded, she refuses to tell the names of the gangster who shot her up. "Code of Gangland!" Stuff and nonsense! It's not any special code which keeps gangsters silent. It's fear. They know that if they talk they will get killed.

One of the scientists out at the Pasadena gathering advanced the theory—in fact he claimed observation had demonstrated it to be more than a theory—that the moon intensifies earthquakes. The quakes would come anyway, he stated, but when the moon is in the right position to exert its strongest pull, the quakes are more frequent and more intense. Fair Luna surely has a mighty wide range of influence, running the gamut from lovers' hearts to this old globe of ours.

Getting Rid of Them.

Some of the best photograph on record has as its subject picturesque groups of immigrants gazing toward the statue of Liberty—toward unlimited opportunity in the new land of America.

Recollections of this sentimental pictorial theme make a strongly contrasting background for the deportation activities of the federal government. Thousands came and thousands are being sent back. The amiable host who kept open house for so long has suddenly turned particular, ejecting unwanted guests by the boatload. Hard times have made him look to his records.

In the four years from 1916 to 1920, 12,000 aliens were deported. From 1920 to 1925, 28,000 were deported, and from 1926 to 1930, 64,008 were deported. Already in the fiscal year, 1931, there have been 14,558 deportations, within 2,080 as many as there were in all of 1930, and there are many more to come before the year ends July 1. Whereas in bygone years, deportation was a thing almost unknown except in cities, even small towns are familiar with the process now. Many deportations are secured on complaint of individuals.

The procedure is simple. A field agent of the immigration service investigates the suspected alien and presents his findings to a board of review, composed of a group of inspectors. Their decision comes for review to immigration service officials in Washington, or to the secretary of labor, to whom the alien has the right of appeal. A central court of review meets in the department of labor for judgment on disputed cases, and if the department decides to deport an alien it issues a warrant for his arrest.

An alien who is a public charge, advocates overthrow of the government by force, or is involved in prostitution, the narcotic traffic or crime of moral turpitude may be deported any time. In general, any alien who entered illegally to take up permanent residence after [illegible] 1924, may be deported.

Ghost Information.

Something like a year ago announcement was made of the discovery of a nebula which was traveling away from our solar system at a speed such as never before had been known in connection with the movement of a heavenly body—in this case a collection or grouping of heavenly bodies. It is not necessary to state the various estimates of that speed, as the lowest estimate of the nebula's movement was to one not versed in such things simply inconceivable of attainment by anything material. The estimated speed may have been as great as claimed and the nebula may at some time have been, and may still be, moving away from us. But what do the scientists really know about it? That it was at the time and still is moving at some speed and in some direction is very probable, for that is the rule with heavenly bodies and groups of heavenly bodies. But how do we know that it has not changed its course and is coming toward us? How do we know that it is still in existence?

Speaking before the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Pasadena, California, this week, Dr. Edwin Hubble, noted explorer into the vast recesses of the skies, referred to these nebulae as ghosts of the skies. The doctor, who has prosecuted his researches by the use of the world's largest telescope and the world's largest and fastest camera, at Mount Wilson observatory, made plain that all the scientists know of these nebulae was what their position, course and speed was from 100,000,000 to 250,000,000 years ago, as light, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, would take from 100,000,000 to 250,000,000 years, according to their distances away, to come from them to us.

These nebulae, the doctor stated, average about 100,000,000 times the brightness of our sun, but they are so far away that they appear as mere points of light through the Mount Wilson telescope. The Milky way spreads over an area of 960,000,000,000,000,000 miles, yet it is beyond this great galaxy that Dr. Hubbell has been studying these island groups, and he estimates that there are 30,000,000 of them within the reach of the great 100-inch instrument he has been using "scattered at average intervals as part of the order of 1,500,000 light years. As a light year is about six million of million miles—to be nearer exact, 5,865,696,000,000 miles—the immensity of the heavens is simply beyond the understanding of the lay reader, but accepting as correct the estimate that the light from some of them seen today started on its way to us 250,000,000 years ago, the guess of the non-professional as to what or where they are now or as to their present course is just about as good as that of the scientists, for an awful lot of changes are possible in heavenly bodies in 250,000,000 years.

Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser, referred to Hitler before a Socialist gathering, a night or two ago, as "God's gift to Germany." It seems to be a Hohenzollern tendency to hold out the possession of a close insight into the plans and policies of the Supreme One.

The Cigaret Tax.

The cigaret tax it seems certain Ohio will have as the assembly's clinching measure to complete its tax program. Passage of the measure by the house is expected when the assembly meets after its week-end recess. The senate already has passed it.

The public has shown by its lack of forceful opposition to the measure that it intends to take the tax philosophically. There will be some agitation against supporting it, as there always is, but the realization that the revenues are needed urgently has silenced a large part of the opposition before it was well under way.

The assembly faced the alternatives of deriving revenue in a large amount from a tobacco tax, or several smaller amounts from taxes on soft drinks, malt, amusements, a supplemental mortgage recording tax and increases in the utility excise tax. It chose the one which promised the greatest revenue with the least trouble of collection, and also one which embodied a sound taxation principle. Cigarets are a luxury, and as such are better able to stand emergency taxation than a commodity.

In the midst of considering the tax, Ohio can consider Texas which has a three-cent tax ready to go into effect August 22; Ohio's tax will be only two cents on a package of twenty.

"Henry Ford Raising Cantaloupes for Alcohol To Paint Autos He Hopes To Grow on Farm," reads a headline in the New York Times. We knew that Henry has accomplished much in the way of quantity production, but it is something of a surprise to learn that he proposes to grow glorified flivvers.

From Indiana comes a story to the effect that the cherry crop out there is so abnormally large that the robins are killing themselves in a vain attempt to consume it. We will say this for the stories from the Hoosier fiction belt: they are never without an element of interest.

A Scheme To Store Away.

One may encounter on the streets of Philadelphia persons wearing small buttons on their coats. The buttons bear the simple inscription, "I vote." Nothing more.

It's another scheme to stir the apathetic electorate, the probable psychology being that the person observing the button will be more inclined to think about his own voting responsibilities. There is, in addition, the attraction of being one of a select group—and the voting group in any community certainly is restricted as to numbers.

Many schemes have been practiced by politicians and political reformers to get out the vote, and many critics have maintained that the sum effect is exactly nothing at all. There is this to consider, however. If new schemes weren't being tried constantly, if the people weren't being reminded constantly of their responsibilities at the polls might there not be a marked decrease in the proportion of the eligible voters who exercise their franchise? The constant scheming to keep the electorate interested certainly isn't all wasted.

The little buttons with the inscription, "I Vote," may have some effect. It's a scheme worth storing away in any political reformer's box of tricks.

VACATION! OH, BOY!

Editorial Opinion.

THE MAN OF MARION.

Dedication of the memorial at Marion, Ohio, to the late Warren G. Harding, has come finally in the fullness of time, when it is possible to look dispassionately at the man and his career as president. The first mists created by the tragedy which obscured the end of Mr. Harding's life have rolled away. It is possible now to get something in the nature of a balanced picture from which to form a judgment.

We believe that, in the main, the estimate of President Harding delivered by President Hoover as he stood before the tomb of his former chief and close associate, will be the estimate which will prevail hereafter.

Warren G. Harding was a man of fine heart and fine qualities, a man of honor and honesty. Both in his strength and in his failings, he was amiable and lovable. He was earnestly and generously concerned for the welfare of the nation. When he went into the White House he revealed the largeness of his nature by surrounding himself with a cabinet that included some of the most able and distinguished men of the day, men who in the public eye were "bigger" than he. One of those men today is President of the United States, another is chief justice of the supreme court, a third still remains secretary of the treasury, and is one of the most able of all the holders of that place since the birth of the republic.

Would that Mr. Harding had been equally happy in all his choosings! But if some of his errors were as costly as his happy judgments were beneficial, they, too, were the result of the element of largeness in his composition. He could not comprehend the possibility of meanness or treachery in a friend.

The substantial services President Harding performed for the United States were outlined comprehensively by Mr. Hoover. They constitute a record which demands from the nation lasting gratitude and lasting regard for his memory. The years during which Mr. Harding stood at the helm of the ship of state were intensely troubled years and full of confusion. Through them he led the nation steadily toward "normalcy." His achievements provided a sound, strong, durable foundation of statesmanship and sane policy upon which his successors have been able to build symmetrically and consistently. What he began, and what they have carried on, have lessened immeasurably the shock of the world economic depression in this country. That should be recognized and remembered.

For the rest, the glimpse which Mr. Hoover gives of the trouble that haunted the Alaskan trip is full of pathos. "We saw him gradually weaken, not only from physical exhaustion, but from mental anxiety," said the President. "Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends. It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone he friendship of their staunch and loyal friend, but they had betrayed their country. That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding." It was a tragedy that brings eternal condemnation on the heads of those who were responsible, but does not touch the character or personal honor of its victim.—Detroit Free Press.

MR. HOOVER SCORES AIR COP.

One nice thing about being president is that one gets quick action from the administrative departments of the federal government. Sometimes it does not work out that way with the legislative branches, but that is neither here nor there. His reflection is prompted by the gratifying news that the three aviators who made a nuisance of themselves by low flying over the Harding dedication ceremonies at Marion have been "put on the ground" by the department of commerce at the request of President Hoover.

These airmen should have known the President was present and that as head of the government he has the power to set the air cops after them. That Mr. Hoover did just that will please thousands of his less conspicuous fellow-citizens who have been annoyed and frightened by similar discourteous and dangerous flying over large outdoor gatherings.

It seems to have become a fad for some fools in airplanes to fly low whenever they see a crowd. The fact it is against both the law and the rules of safe flying does not deter them. One is glad the President was on hand at Marion to initiate a bit of timely law enforcement.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Rheumatic Condition.

BY ROYAL S. COPLLAND, M. D.

For many years little was known concerning rheumatic fever. There still remains a great deal to be learned about rheumatism. The exact cause for it has not as yet been determined, nor has any definite cure been established.

This disease continues to threaten the health and lives of thousands of children. The toll of heart disease associated with this ailment is one of the great problems now confronting modern medicine.

Children living under unhealthful and unsanitary conditions are likely to have this disease. Yet it does occur among the rich as well as the poor.

Though many families show a tendency to this disease, it is by no means hereditary. There is no relationship between heredity and rheumatism. Nor is the disease contagious.

Enlarged and infected tonsils were believed for many years to be a causative factor of rheumatic fever. This has never been confirmed and it can not be said that abnormal tonsils really cause rheumatic fever.

There is, however, a definite relationship between diseased tonsils and rheumatic heart disease. In such cases it is advisable to have enlarged tonsils removed. They are a menace to the already diseased heart.

Recurrent tonsilitis, with enlarged tonsils, should cause the victim to talk with the family doctor. He may decide that the tonsils are a hindrance to the general health.

I want every mother to realize the importance and significance of rheumatic fever. Our hope in saving the afflicted children lies in the early recognition of the disease. When rheumatic fever is caught in its first stage, many of its serious complications can be avoided.

Such early signs as pains in the limbs, fever and fatigue, must not be overlooked. Please remember that there is no such thing as harmless "growing pains." If the tonsils are infected, have a careful examination made of the heart. Trouble here is more serious than in the joints and muscles.

If your child is pale, tires easily, has a poor appetite and runs a slight fever at night, take him to your family physician. Constant sore throats and colds may mean infected tonsils. If your physician advises their removal, do not hesitate to do as he says.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Stonewall Jackson's Raid.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

General Stonewall Jackson never came upon Ohio soil, but one of his daring raids in the direction of Washington provoked volunteering in this state as few other incidents during the war did. In May, 1862, he burst unexpectedly through the valley south of Washington, and alarm for the federal capital stirred Washington and was communicated to the people of Ohio as if by radio.

On May 26, Governor Tod issued a proclamation based on a call from President Lincoln, citing the danger to the federal capital. He had prepared the ground by telegrams to every county military board the day before. So great was the need represented to be, that they were instructed to forward all who should respond by railroad to Camp Chase at once and at state expense.

In all, 5,000 men volunteered, the great majority of them reaching Camp Chase the next or the third day, so prompt was the response. It is said that at a mass meeting called in Cleveland 250 men volunteered within a few hours, twenty-seven of them being students of a law school whose entire student number was only thirty-two; probably every able-bodied student enlisted.

At Zanesville the fire bells called the people to the courthouse at noon. Court was in session, but the judge adjourned court and the lawyers, the judge accompanying them, went to work in the meeting.

The same thing was done at Urbana and the judge presiding, William Lawrence, left the court, resigned his office and enlisted. He became the colonel of the Eighty-Fourth O. V. I., which was organized under this call. After the war, he was elected to congress, where he became known for his able advocacy of a protective tariff on wool.

At the Western Reserve college twenty students volunteered on the first day, and four or five followed them the next day. Five thousand Ohio men joined the colors under the stimulus, and in view of this effect it is doubtful whether Jackson's demonstration did the Confederate cause more good ultimately than harm.

Science Attacks Tidal Theory.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The present century was inaugurated with a smashing blow to the famous nebular hypothesis of Laplace, which had held virtually undisputed sway for more than a century. Professors Chamberlain and Moulton, of the University of Chicago, advanced a new theory of the solar system, to which was given the name of "the planetesimal hypothesis." It had its origin, perhaps, in a contemplation of the vast streams or fountains of matter which are constantly being ejected hundreds of thousands of miles into the space surrounding the sun.

Then two scientists, one a geologist, the other an astronomer, assumed the existence originally of a huge sun, very much as it is today, only vastly larger. Eons ago it was ejecting these huge fountains of matter, much as it is doing today. Again, these two scientists had to assume the existence of some mighty star, which went ploughing its way through space. Adopting the ideas of Buffon, put forward in the eighteenth century, they studied the effects upon the sun of the near approach to it of this giant star. By sheer force of gravity the star would pull vast streams of matter from the sun; thus would be formed two giant arms of matter.

On the basis of analogy of the spiral nebulae, thousands of which are now known to exist, Chamberlin and Moulton presumed that the sun, in its new state, constituted a sort of spiral nebula. Knots or condensations gradknots of matter, after ejection, were what they ually formed in these mighty arms; and these designated planetesimals. Each of these great eruptions eventually gave rise to very many planetesimals, which ultimately united into a single mass or planet. Various eruptions, great and small, were required in this planetesimal theory—the great eruptions giving rise to the planets, the lesser eruptions giving rise to satellites, planetesimals and other minor bodies.

This theory was developed in considerable detail by Jeans and other British mathematicians. They attached to the developed theory a new name, the tidal or tidal action theory, although it remained fundamentally the same theory as that of Chamberlin and Moulton. Jeans finally reached the conclusion that the so-called tidal action, or the pulling out of the sun of huge fountains of matter by a passing star, was adequate to explain the origin of the solar system. It was not necessary to assume that there were intermittent eruptions, some large, some less large, in order to explain the formation of individual planets, satellites and the like.

Now, after thirty years of almost uninterrupted triumphs, the theory of the two American scientists, as modified by Jeans and other British scientists, is being attacked and threatened.

Rotation had to be explained; and Jeans attempted to explain it on the assumption that ejected matter falls back into the sun, say, after having acquired a transverse motion during its path. But the amount of rotation to suit this explanation falls far short of what would be necessary to produce the known phenomena. The tidal theory would give rise to a universe somewhat resembling our own. But as Jeffreys has pointed out, it would never supply planets rotating with anything near their actual known speeds.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Tuesday, June 20.

The Star reported the wedding of Miss Frances Connell, of Urbana, and Mr. Ernest Wilhelm, of Marion, in the home city of the bride the day before.

A class of twenty was graduated by St. Mary's parochial school.

Miss Jennie Winters and Mr. Robert E. Hershner were married by Rev. G. L. Bender.

Miss Nina D. Grimes and Mr. Charles W. Sidenstricker were married by Rev. J. W. Miles.

Daniel Yake, seventy-one, a well-known merchant of Marion, died at his home on Jefferson street.

Smashing in the front door of the home of his son, Cyrus Shadley, south of a Ada, Cyrus Shadley found the decomposed body of the former lying upon the floor with his dog, weakened by hunger, still guarding the body.

A marriage license was issued to Goldie F. Gelbaugh and Royal C. Martin.

The LaRue High school graduated a class of thirteen.

Charles V. Schoonmaker, a local Erie conductor, was badly hurt in a railroad accident at Elgin.

Ross Runyon came home to visit friends after four years' service in the marine corps.

Seneff and Regan outpitched Marshall and Marion defeated Lancaster five to three.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 20—I am one of the stuffed owls who is a complete conversation A-1 dud at dinner parties. For a time I got so I could squeeze out a remark or so about vitamins, but when they went out all I can do is sit. And usually I draw on either side some extraordinary brilliant lady.

They try me out with a little engaging chatter, but turn quickly to others, leaving me alone with my gawkiness and perhaps a salad dab on my vest. Another thing, I wish people giving dinners and inviting me would take up the bear rugs.

Any time I step into a room spread with a big bear rug innocent bystanders should rush for the exits. The minute I put my foot on one it seems to come to life. I'll take an oath that one in Will Hays' apartment not only tripped me into a half somersault, but bit me beside.

I can walk over a little cinnamon bear rug fairly well—although I did kick the glass eye out of one at Ed Nolan's ranch in California once. But a huge polar bear rug, literally floors me. If I sit near them even when they hang on the wall they drop. It's spooky.

One of my pleasant dreams is dressing all up like Mrs. Astor's plush pony, filling my pockets with moths, and going around calling and slipping them into bear rugs. And there's a Rocky Mountain bear rug in Leon Gordon's studio I'd like to sic my racoon coat on, the big ruffian!

But I digress. I set out to tell about a dinner last night. On my right was a lady from Chicago and on my left one from Boston. I decided to employ the psychological association of ideas as a topic for conversation. So I thought of Boston and inquired: "How is the bean business during the depression?"

I wished right away I could have rubbed that out. The lady gave me a Back Bay stare, twiddled her fork in her salad and replied, "Very well, I suppose," and turned to her next nearest companion. I feared to say anything to the Chicago one for I had thought of stockyards. And might inquire about a hoof or something.

• • •

The Chicago lady was gracious, however. She sensed my fish-out-of-water manner, talked amiably of various celebrities present and remarked that in the confusion she had not caught my name. I told her and it might as well have been Y. Euphoria Plunk. "And," she archly inquired, "I suppose like others here you do something distinguished?" I replied, "I write for newspapers, I do." I don't know what the blazes made me put in that last "I do." I never heard anything so sappy. I felt some one should take my hat and skates off the highboy and send me on to school.

• • •

With a pained look of Rameses II she murmured something, and if I'd had a shotgun I would have blown my head off right there. Finally she asked: "Do you happen to know Ashton Stevens?" I held up two fingers glued together and replied: "Ashton? We are like that!" I wanted to say I wrote for the same Chicago paper, but she blocked that with: "There are two things I never fail to read in the paper—Ashton Stevens and James Weber Linn."

• • •

About here a fellow sitting across from me and buzzed up with cocktails suddenly decided that among things he didn't care for was me. He was beaked like a toucan, whiter than Socrates on the last swig of hemlock and looked as though he had just fled a wax exhibit. Leering, he muttered: "Who sneaked you in here, lil' butter-cup?" Quick as that I replied: "Nobody, you wreath of frog spawn, and they are not wearing three stud shirts this season"—which didn't make me come out so badly, considering that I'm a home body and do not mingle with the smart alecs.

• • •

The drunk, after studying his shirt studs a while, stood up and, shaking his fist, demanded satisfaction. The frightened host came up and tried soothingly to placate him, but he kept insisting: "Is'h sittin' here tending to my business and zash wall-eyed buzzard calish me a dirty name. He insulted my dearsh mother." And then he broke down, and shook with sobs.

• • •

Something like this invariably happens when I totter to dinner parties. I'd give them up entirely, but in times like these I should tip my hat at a free and filling meal. And walk on.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

From Our Readers.

HE WANTS TO KNOW.

Editor Star—There is an issue of vital importance being brought to the front, that will have a very important bearing in guiding the future destinies and policies of the Marion City hospital, if the plan as inaugurated receives the sanction of our city council. Usually an issue of this kind does not receive the attention that it merits because an unsuspecting public sometimes does not realize what the ultimate results would terminate into whether they be beneficial or detrimental to future patients and taxpayers.

Marion's medical fraternity is seeking to have our public owned hospital recognized by the American College of Surgeons, whose principles and lofty ideals are one thing, while the motive and purpose underlying this movement may be quite another, and could be lost track of if an unsuspecting public were to listen to a flow of flowery oratory.

The writer's understanding of one of the requirements toward recognition by the American College of Surgeons is that there shall be a chief of staff appointed who is a surgeon and he appoints aides to complete the staff; this group to formulate rules and approve or disapprove of who shall be permitted to practice medicine and surgery within the confines of the hospital. This would raise the questions of who would be the chief of staff. Would it be the only member that resides in Marion of the American College of Surgeons, who apparently remains silent on the subject? Why is the issue being raised by those who are either ineligible to become members or decline to do so? The fact must be borne in mind that members of the American College of Surgeons attain their membership only through their application to a strict code of ethics, one which does not permit so-called fee-splitting. If our city council should pass this plan, would the chief of staff and his followers be permitted to dictate who would practice surgery and medicine in the hospital? If the answer is in the affirmative then it ceases to be a public institution and is ruled by an oligarchy, and a person that might become injured or ill and is removed to the hospital would have to submit to treatment by a choosing of medical men other than his or her own. This becomes interesting if a person were to inquire if there has been such an overwhelming change of heart among Marion's medical men that they have purged themselves 100 per cent. of all professional jealousies and that a proposition of this kind is backed up by them as a whole. Another question might arise: would any better results be obtained from the patients & the taxpayer's point of view by the adoption of the plan? I sincerely believe that city council should be very careful in drafting any legislation pertaining to this project so as to protect the rights of all physicians, and above all the rights of the citizens to whom the hospital belongs and whose taxes must maintain it.

18-Year Fight Over Erie Station Ends for Village

Special to The Star

KENTON, June 20 The village of Alger in the Scioto marsh district, is today one step nearer its dream of years—the removal of the Erie railroad depot from the center of the Main street

All that remains now before the dream is realized is for the town and railroad officials to get together to determine just what disposition is to be made of the frame structure and who will do the work.

Agitation to have the depot removed that the main street pavement might be extended through the town without interruption started nearly 18 years ago.

First definite step was recorded when Alger officials filed suit against the carrier to remove the depot and open and pave the crossing The case was carried into the Ohio supreme court, the high tribunal ruling that the railroad vacate the street and put in a crossing.

A counter suit was filed by the Erie against the town, asking damages for the property affected. The Hardin county common pleas court awarded damages in the sum of $1776 which was paid here this week by Glen Hanson, clerk of Alger council and representative of the town.

Now, it is maintained, the situation reverts back to the first court decision for vacation and crossing construction

Conference with Erie officials is to be held to determine just what they plan to do with the depot structure It has been proposed that it be moved either to the right or left of the street right of way or torn down

In any event Alger officials say the building must go and the main street crossing installed in compliance with orders of the court

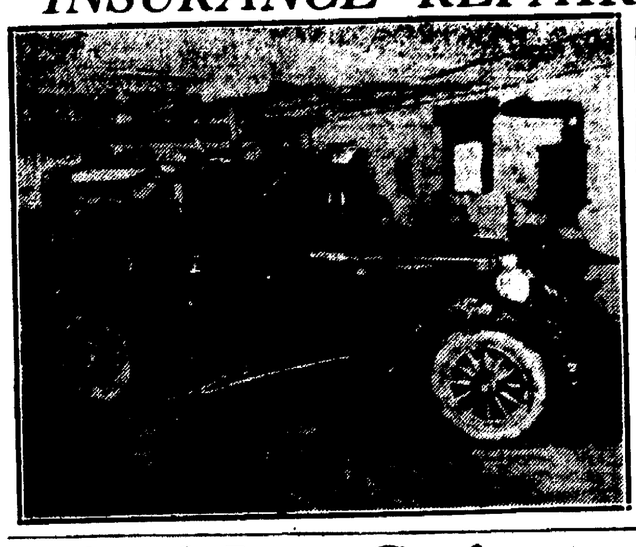
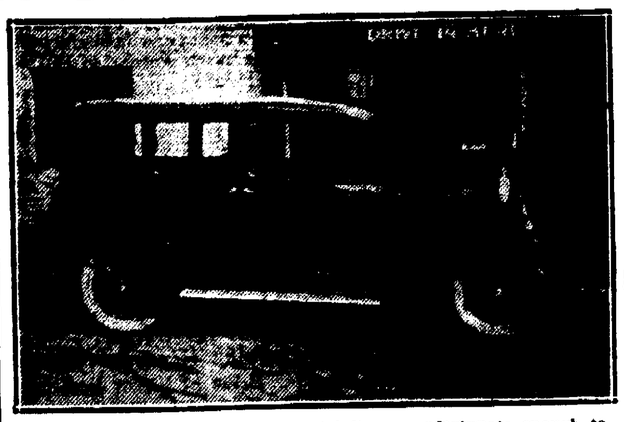
Henry Kraner Insurance Agency Takes Worry Out of

INSURANCE REPAIRS DAMAGED AUTO





Owner of automobile shown at left was unfortunate enough to have it wrecked. But he was fortunate in having it insured with Henry Kraner Agency. Picture at right shows car repaired without cost to owner.

Risk of Loss Confronts All Motorists on Road

Constantly every one is confronted by risks of fire, windstorm and auto accidents of every type. The average man is careless in making provision for losses of valuable property, says Henry Kraner, local insurance man.

In 1925, Mr. Kraner formed a partnership with Elmer J. Weimer, known as Weimer-Kraner Insurance Agency. The agency wrote all forms of insurance until April, 1928, when Henry Kraner purchased Weimer's interests; Weimer retaining life, health and accident. The Kraner agency is located in room 22 of the Marion building at 196 south Main street. It writes fire, windstorm, plateglass, complete automobile and mercantile insurance.

Protection is not expensive. Few people are willing to take the risk of loss if they pause long enough to figure the possible losses which are unavoidable and may be incurred without warning. All men are equal before chance. You may be next to pay unless you have arranged for an insurance company to assume all costs and difficulties.

Assumes All Losses

Protect as you build! Insurance is just another way of saying protection. An insurance company cannot safeguard your personal property, but can assume all losses you may suffer. Take advantage of sure, economical protection available at the Kraner agency.

Insurance business differs from that of the average mercantile establishment. Stated concisely, inducements governing the outstanding success of the Kraner Insurance Agency are dependability, prompt loss settlements, accommodation and appreciation.

Automobile insurance is one type featured by Henry Kraner. What can not be prevented can be insured against. You control the destiny of your car only to the extent that your own skill and care are involved. You can not drive the other fellow's car. Neither can you immunize your car from fire or theft. Insurance remains your one flaw-proof protection against loss.

Property damage insurance protects you against damage your car might do to another's property, this does not necessarily mean another car as the Kraner agency has paid claims for show windows, electric poles, fences, porch posts, bicycles and numerous other objects.

Collision insurance covers the damage to your own car as a result of upset or colliding with another object, whether it be moving or stationary. This is written three ways:

Full coverage, as the name implies, means that the total amount of damage to your car will be paid for by the insurance company regardless of how small or how large the claim may be.

Deductable form is cheaper than full coverage. You carry a certain part of the expense on each loss. Collision insurance is also written on 50 per cent retention basis. This means that you pay but 50 per cent of the premium when the policy is issued. If you are fortunate to have no claim during the year you do not pay the 50 per cent balance. When your first claim is reported you make your payment of the 50 per cent retention and you have a full coverage policy. The insurance company will then protect you for the full amount of any loss for the remainder of the policy period.

Liability insurance protects the owner of an automobile in case of a damage suit as result of personal injury caused by the automobile.

Handles Court Cases

Ofttimes suit is brought against a driver even though he was in the right and the accident was unavoidable. The case may easily be won; nevertheless there is a lawyer and other expenses—all inconveniances and costs would be assumed by the company which had issued a liability policy. There is yet another side to liability insurance. It often brings peace of mind to a driver who has injured a small child. Much satisfaction comes in knowing that even though you were unable to pay several hundreds of dollars for doctor and hospital bills, your policy makes it unnecessary for the father of that child, who may be in poor circumstances financially, to stand the unavoidable expenses bit by bit from his small weekly salary. No automobile owner can afford to be without liability insurance.

You'll find the cost of complete protection agreeably low. Call 7142 and inquire for Henry Kraner.

DEFT TOUCHES BEAUTIFY HOUSE

That it is possible to follow an economical rectangular plan without sacrificing architectural beauties is a fact happily apparent in this attractive little six-room house.

On the one hand, the regular shape of the house cuts construction costs, while deft interior planning utilizes space without waste. On the other, the exterior treatment makes the most out of the shape by supplying those little touches that lift it out of the mere box-like type that otherwise might be the result.

The exterior is clapboard with about nine or ten inches to the weather and painted white or cream. The shutters are dark blue-green, effectively set off by the lighter clapboard and the white of the windows and other trim.

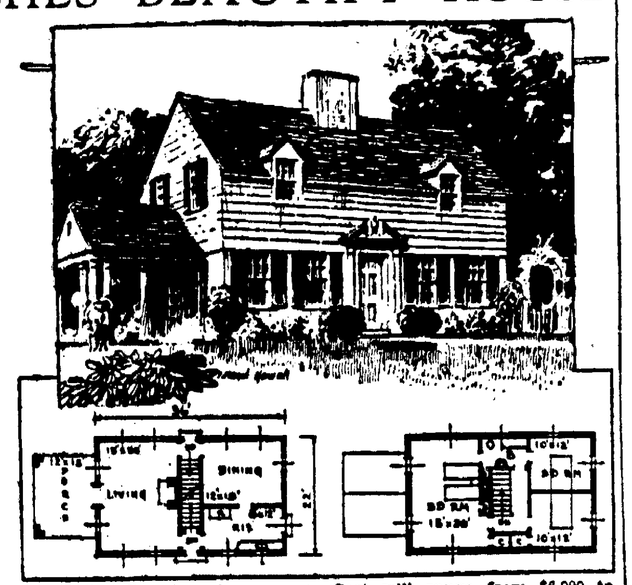
Most effective is the entrance, the top of which interestingly breaks the long sweep of the clapboards across the front and under the two windows.

The roof is of wood shingles in various tones such as sepia, gray brown and warm grays, while the brick chimney is of whitewashed brick with an unwhitewashed coping.

The house, exclusive of the porch, occupies a space of only 22 by 36 feet.

On the first floor there is a large living room with a fireplace on one of its longer sides, the porch opening from the other. It has ventilation from three sides.

The dining room, also cross-ventilated, and the kitchen, conveniently placed near the front door, complete the first floor layout.



One of the bedrooms upstairs has four windows and three exposures, while the other two, though smaller, are cross-ventilated. The single bath connects with two of the rooms and has an opening into the hall.

If the house faces the east, the living room and porch will receive the southern sunshine all day. Proper planting will bring out its good points and add others. A lot 50 by 100 feet is needed.

Cost will range from $6,000 to $8,000, depending upon local conditions.

Germans have invented maps that can be mounted on an airplane steering wheel and unreeled to guide an aviator.

A shelf containing two electric heating plates has been invented to be hung on one end of a coal or gas stove.

The WIRES you never see . . .
The convenience and economy of electricity, your home servant, depend largely on the electric wires behind your walls. Only when the wiring is well planned — providing for handy wall switches and plenty of outlets—can you take full advantage of electric lights, floor lamps, irons, fans, and all the labor-saving appliances. Electric service can go only as far as the wires that carry it.
When the home and farm buildings are first wired — or when the wiring is extended — keep in mind that it doesn't pay to scrimp. Adequate, well-planned wiring costs little and soon pays for itself in the added comfort and saving of time and work.

VIEW OF CITY BUS LINE GARAGE

Bus System Installed More Than 2 Years Ago

When the new city bus service had its inception in Marion about two years and a half ago, people were skeptical and exceedingly doubtful as to whether the busses could satisfactorily take the place of the old city street cars.

Today, no one is dubious, for the busses have, and very satisfactorily, taken the place of the old street cars. The busses not only make a better appearance but ride much easier and cover more territory as well.

When the Maag Bros., long known and respected in Marion, received the franchise to own and operate the present splendid bus service, they took immediate hold of their opportunity and provided Marion and its citizens with a local bus service that is unsurpassed in any town this size in Ohio.

This was no easy job, for the routings of the busses had to be arranged and laid out so as to serve the demands of the largest majority, and at the same time allow for a legitimate profit. The routes, rates and schedules were arranged with the advice and sanction of the city council.

Thirteen fine new yellow coaches were purchased from the General Motors Truck Corp., at Pontiac, Mich., a subsidary of the General Motors Corp., of Detroit. These busses which have no second for local bus transportation contain powerful eight cylinder Cadillac motors, which are capable of pulling any load required. Each bus is roomy and comfortable, and seats 28 persons without crowding. The seats themselves are heavily padded with soft springy cushions which remind one more of a parlor car than a bus. Each car has four speeds and four wheel hydraulic brakes with a Westinghouse booster all of which makes for safety and easy control of the car.

There is no anticipated change in either the bus routes or schedules in the near future as the present system seems to be working satisfactorily.

SEEKING BEAUTY IN THEIR HOMES

Increased Wealth Gives Americans Opportunity To Gratify Their Desires.

GRAND RAPIDS—Leisure and wealth have brought to youthful America the old world atmosphere and the desire to satisfy the longing for beauty in the homes, said Mrs Marion Teal, merchandising counselor and authority on home decoration.

Busy Americans, she said, have always had an appreciation of beautiful interiors but in their hustle of life have "never had time" to beautify their homes in the manner they would have liked.

"Interior decoration, architecture and furnishings must be regarded as a unit in equipping the home," Mrs Teal said. "The furnishings must have the proper background. In other words, the furnishings must be appropriately adapted to the type of walls or one of the other must be changed to create the proper atmosphere.

"When a woman plans to go shopping for furnishings she must take into consideration the architectural features of her rooms. The furnishings and the interior decorations to be used in those rooms must be in keeping. An English, Early American or a room that is distinctive architecturally of any period must of course, have furnishings adapted to the period."

Engineers have decided that it would be entirely practical to build a steel tower a mile high.

FASHION TRANSFORMS THE DOOR STOP

BY MARGERY TAYLOR

Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine. Written for The Marion Star.

Henceforth the door stop must be in harmony with the period of the room. It isn't sufficient that it should be merely useful.

And if the room has no period, then at least the guardian of the door should follow the latest fashion.

Nor does this requirement impose a hardship, because there are today more kinds of door stops in accepted styles than there are kinds of doors.

For a house in the popular Colonial style, one may find appropriate a door stop consisting of an iron pot with hand-painted tulips of the same metal.

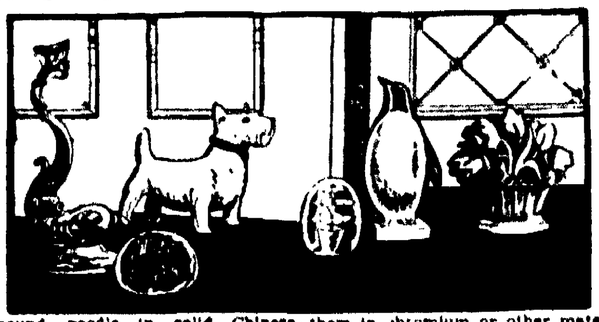
An early American room, say, with maple furniture, hooked rugs and red chintzes will possibly find a whimsical bronze cat a fitting pet.

Where the interior is much more formal and elaborate, such as those of the eighteenth century expressed in mahogany, a green dolphin or a glass millefleur door stop strikes a proper note.

But if you are fascinated by a dolphin and must have it, it isn't necessary to change the furniture.

For the summer home at the seashore, a black and white penguin made of hard rubber will face the ocean breezes unblinkingly. Several other fascinating door animals are made of this same material, less cumbersome than iron.

Dogs—natural guardians of the door—have been created in solid rubber. One may buy a devoted Scottie, eight inches high, complete with collar and tail—or there is a round poodle in solid Chinese bronze.



In the summer cabin in the woods, or in any house with an Early English interior of rough plaster, a fox-head, with lifting handle, in bronze, seems to be a match for the wolf at the door, if there is one.

Dogs will be dogs in any medium. Thus you may find them ranging from a crystal pup to a stately borzoi in chromium. There's a wide selection.

As for leaping colts, you'll find them in chromium or other material, and other well known animal friends are likewise represented.

Those who don't care for animals will find other interesting things to suit their fancies. For example, there is the head of Punch.

And if you insist on the exotic, what about a dragon, with a fierce tail?

There's really no limit to the subjects that may appear in these newest door stops, as whims suggest and manufacturers supply them.

Stability Depends on Building Foundation

The first element in good housing is the physical structure of the dwelling and its state of repair. Foundations underlie the house. If they are not adequate they will settle unevenly and throw the whole structure and frame of the house out of alignment. The results will be cracked plaster, doors that will not shut and sagging floors.

The walls and framing of the house need to be well designed, and substantial if it is to stand square and true through wind and storm and not shrink out of line as the timber seasons.

Including pillow and parasol, a rug for beach bathers has been invented that rolls compactly for carrying.

Rumania established new high records for drilling, production, refining and export of petroleum last year.

Just Things

Quilts

LOTS of folks occupied their "spare" time by making quilts last winter and one wonders if history will repeat itself this summer and the good women who simply cant "bear" not to be busy, will look with kindly eye to that ultra-feminine gesture of making fancy-work. It was real art to follow those intricate cutlines for the lover's knot, worked in blue floss, of course, and do you recall those lifelike thorns which required a whole afternoon to hitch onto the roses? To us there is something fascinating about quilts and we don't mind admitting their designing is as complicated looking as a Chinese puzzle. What we like best about them, next to admiring the arrangements of the colors and the beautiful designs and stitching are the names. Listen to some of these: "Chimney-Sweep," "Mexican Rose" "Star of Bethlehem," "Tulip," "The Pine Tree," and hosts of others.

Picnic Boxes

IT'S open season once again for the old picnic basket, buns pickles, potato chips and on down the line. A veteran picnicker, reminescing the other day, bewailed the fact that the days of excursions to famous parks and resorts had practically passed into the land of limbo The morning of the excursion was one day the family ate breakfast together and no one had to be called, he opined. Each kid had his own shoebox to take care of and did he hang on to it. And wasn't it funny how heavy the box got after dinner, when it fell your lot to be custodian of the leftovers saved for a "piece" when the rest of the gang got hungry? Well, don't feel too badly about it, old timer, folks are still going on excursions but the old shoe box has graduated into a hotsy totsy hamper with accessories to match.

Business

WE laughed at this at first, just as you will do and then we saw the tragedy of it and a little later we admired her courage for wanting her own wedding to be just as near like the smartest of the season as she could have it. "Wanted by working girl, this year's style wedding dress and veil. Unable to pay more than $10." All we hope is that some one who could, gave her a swanky outfit and told her to save the sawbuck for a damp day. But maybe after all she is just a keen-minded business girl

Guest Day Party Held by Members of Home Circle

MEMBERS of the Woman's Home circle held their annual guest day party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Clapsaddle of north Main street. The lawn at the Clapsaddle home afforded an attractive setting for the affair and the guests enjoyed a program. Later, eight tables were arranged on the lawn for tea. Garden flowers carried out a colorful decorative note for the tables and the hostesses were assisted in serving by the younger guests of the afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Johnson entertained with the presentation of "Death Takes a Holiday," and Miss Pauline Parish contributed a reading, "Little Sister in the Medicine Closet."

Guests included Mrs. G E. Calliaum of Millersberg, Ky., Mrs. Otis Childers of South Bend, Ind., Miss Jane Ogle of Crestline Miss Gladys Larson of St James, Minn., Mrs. F. D. Bentz, Mrs. Ella Conarty, Mrs. Anna Ulsh, Mrs. Milo Lewis, Mrs. Ida Longshore, Mrs. Frank Berringer, Mrs. W. F. Zachman, Mrs. Kate Clapsaddle, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Misses Eloise Tschanen, Martha Tschanen, Pauline Parish, Betty Jane Cahill, Mary Louise Cahill and Margaret Clapsaddle.

The members will meet for their regular club session next Friday at the home of Mrs. J. G. Dutton of Summit street.

CHAPTER 18
Wrecked Plans

PERFECTLY ignoring the embarrassing situation into which he had entered, Pierre approached Bruce.

"Here's a little good-by present for you, old man," he said, extending his hand with a box in it.

Bruce silently took the box and, opening it, found a scarf pin.

"Why, Pierre," he said.

"I thought you'd like it," returned Pierre hastily. "Had to give it to you now 'cause I'll be leaving early in the morning before you get back from Camden."

Pierre paused hurriedly, with an effort to control her voice, "That reminds me I must go and pack my bag." Still crying she left the room.

Pierre and Bruce stood looking at each other. Slowly Pierre turned to Bruce. "What's the trouble, Bruce—what's Ann crying about?"

Bruce did not answer, but looked about uneasily. Pierre grew more and more disturbed. "What's the matter with you and Ann, Bruce?"

Bruce paused before Pierre and said him doubtfully. "I'm not sure that I ought to tell you."

"Why not? Is Ann crying because anything I've said or—"

Bruce answered reluctantly. "In a way—yes. If you must know, she's feeling badly over my proposal to invest your money for me."

"Oh, Bruce, I told Ann not a minute ago that I wouldn't let anyone else have that chance to invest in anything. That's settled."

"I know it is, Pierre, but Ann's mighty good to you since you've been making your home with her, aren't she?"

"She's been wonderful. Bruce I've often wished I could make you both understand how grateful I am."

"Yeah." Well, it would mean a lot to Ann if I could get a start toward making some real money."

"Yes, of course."

"Pierre, if I have been too keen in urging you to help me get in right on a really big thing and at the same time more than double your money for you, it's been on Ann's account. I don't mind for myself, pinching along like we have to on my measly bank-clerk salary, but it hurts to see Ann slaving without even a woman to wash and iron for her. I don't want Ann to work herself to death like so many of these old hard Hill women do. If she didn't love beautiful things like she does or if she wasn't the kind who could really appreciate such things it wouldn't matter so much—but you know how fine Ann is. I'd like for Ann to have the home she dreams about and all that a woman like her deserves. And—well—she's counted too much I guess, on what this Nevada gold mine was going to do for her. We can't blame her if she is a bit upset over her disappointment."

"But Bruce," cried Pierre desperately. "Ann has been urging me all along not to let you have my money. She wants me to go to school to prepare myself to be an actor as I have always planned—as mother planned for me before she died."

"Sure, I know. That's Ann. She would make any sacrifice for you, Pierre. But just the same she feels it. I know I ought to have told you but she's crying because after all she's done for you and all she's been to you you haven't seen your way to help me get the start in life that would mean so much to her. She thought you cared more for her—for us—that's all."

"Good Lord!" Bruce, I never thought of it that way."

"That's what I've tried to tell Ann, Pierre. I told her you didn't realize what it would mean to her."

"That's right. I haven't realized what it would mean to Ann."

"I know you haven't, and she knows it too, but it hurts just the same."

"But I'm all packed to go in the morning."

"You haven't bought your ticket yet."

"That's so. I suppose I could have my old soda fountain back."

"And you would go right on making your home with Ann and me. It isn't as if you were giving up your plans to go on the stage, Pierre. It's only putting it off a few months."

"Sure, I know. A year wouldn't make so much difference. Are you certain Bruce that this gold mining investment is all you say it is and that you won't need my money longer than a year?"

"If I wasn't sure do you think for a minute I would propose letting me invest your money in it?"

"But I haven't very much money, Bruce. I figure that there's barely enough for me to scrape through school and live until I can land some sort of a part in some play."

"I know what you have, Pierre. I looked up your account in our bank. You drew it all out this afternoon, too."

As if in a dream Pierre slowly drew a package of bills from his pocket and gave it to Bruce. "I—I never realized about Ann," he said.

Bruce as he put the money in his pocket, said. "She would give me the devil if she knew I'd told you. You'll never regret this, Pierre; it will make us all rich."

"Yeah," returned Pierre, "I'm awfully glad I can do something for Ann."

Before they could say anything more Martin Bevis entered with hat and cane. "That Camden train goes at 7:30, doesn't it, Bruce?"

"Seven-forty," answered Bruce.

"Oh! Well, we can walk as far as the bank together. I've got to find that blasted 39 cents yet tonight."

Ann, coming in with the bag she had packed for Bruce, asked, "What time is it now, Pa?"

As Martin drew his watch from his pocket a massive old-fashioned Masonic charm came loose from the guard and fell to the floor. Martin cried: "I've dropped my Masonic charm," and began hunting for it. Ann and Pierre went to Martin's assistance. Bruce moved to the desk at the farther end of the room and began hurriedly to write a letter.

"Here it is!" cried Ann, recovering the charm and giving it to her father.

The old bookkeeper handled the emblem fondly. "I wouldn't take a fortune for that," he said proudly. He handed it to Pierre.

Pierre, examining the charm, "Presented to Martin Bevis by his brother Masons in token of his services as Worshipful Master of Orchard Hill Lodge, number 36, November 30 1883." "Fine!" said Pierre. "I don't wonder you think a lot of it."

Martin received the charm from Pierre's hand and regarded it with fond admiration. Then he remarked "The spring in this blamed snap is weak. That's how it come loose."

"Hadn't you better leave it at home Pa until you have it fixed?" asked Ann.

"No." Martin returned impatiently as he fixed the snap. "I have never been without this sacred emblem a minute. I'll just bend this spring a bit and it will hold all right until I get a new one. I never would find that 39 cents to balance my books tonight if I was to leave my lucky charm at home." He called to Bruce "Come on, Bruce, it's time we were going if you expect to catch that train to Camden tonight."

Bruce finished the letter he was writing, placed it in an envelope, which he sealed and put in his pocket.

"Goodby, Ann -" he kissed her hurriedly.

"Goodby, dear, you'll be sure to come home on the morning train, won't you?"

He laughed nervously and, turning hastily, offered his hand to Pierre. "Well goodby, old scout."

Pierre, shocked at Bruce's manner and the indifference of his farewell, shook hands silently.

Bruce, with a laugh, caught up his bag and rushed after Martin.

Suddenly Pierre grasped the full import of the situation—Bruce was going away with his school money—his own plans to leave for New York in the morning were wrecked. Starting as if to run after Bruce, he called with quick excitement. "Bruce, oh, Bruce—wait a minute. I—"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday, and me and Jubilee woke up thinking we would do and where we would go, and I let him down by the rope in his teeth and stuck my head out of the window into the world, and it certainly looked like a good world to me, so I put on my short britches and went down and my grandfather was already up. He said, "Grand, you are a mighty lucky little boy." I said I certainly was, because there was mighty few little boys that had a grandfather that would take them to every circus that came along, and he said then that he was going to get one of the other boys to drive out my cows and he was going to let me go fishing with him out to Blair's Lake. I told him that would be fine, and I didn't tell him I would ruther go with the bunch, so he gave Peanuts a nickel to take my cows out along with his cows and we fed our faces and he let me carry his tackle box, which is made of tin and full of sinkers and everything heavy and his pole, and we got on a street car and then when that got as far as it was going we got on a bus and went a long ways, and then we got off and walked till I thought my arms would be so long from carrying the box that they would drag on the ground, and then we came to the lake, and my grandfather gave a man fifty cents for a boat and I sot in the end of it and paddled it out into the lake and it was like setting in a frying pan, only it was hotter on top than it was where I sot, and my grandfather was standing up casting and he could make his hook go wherever he wanted to, and his whiskers was going up and down whilst he chewed his tobacco and he was spitting every which way mostly against the wind.

I wanted to please him, so I said, "Grandpa how did you get to be such a good caster?" And he said that when he was a little boy he took lots of caster oil. I was just going to ast him if he was spoofing me, but he got a strike, and when he pulled it in he had got his hook in the middle of a big snake, and he was mad about it when he reeled it in and called it names my mother wouldn't of liked for me listen to, but I didn't mind. Then he whipped it against the side of the boat till it hung like a rag and I took it off for him. He wasn't watching out the next time and he got a strike that made his reel grip go around like an eelctric fan, and then he pulled in a bass that he said weighed seven pounds, but he had a big bloodblister on the end of his thumb and he said he bet the blankety blank thing was broke. It hurted him so we went home. My mother opened up the blister with a needle and she said that would take the pressure off and make it stop hurting, and it did. My grandfather kissed her. Then he took the base away to have its picture taken, and he came home at night dragging the bass on the ground and singing Sweet Addoline. Grandfathers are funny.

Inland Fishermen Allowed Two Poles

Two, not one, is the maximum legal number of poles a fisherman may use in inland waters of Ohio at any one time, O. H. Netmeyer, state game protector has announced. Through a misunderstanding, it was previously announced that one pole was the limit in this state. Two poles or two lines are allowed each fisherman by Ohio inland fishing laws.

It is illegal to spear carp, Netmeyer has warned.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Arrival of the Veritzens Causes a Riot of Excitement.

WE were not left long in suspense as to the identity of the car whose horn we had just heard at the farmyard gate, although in deed, I think Katherine and Lillian were as despondently sure as I that it was the luxurious limousine of Philip Veritzen with the faithful if saturnine Otto at the wheel. Since the alarm of the Chinese the farmyard gates are always closed at night and it is impossible for any car to get through them without passing the inspection of Jim or of the guard in my father's employ.

All three of us had rushed to the open window at the sound of the horn, and behind the shelter of the curtains were eagerly and shamelessly listening for the first sound of voices.

"Oh!" That was Jim's stolid voice. "It's you Otto! Wait just a second. I'll unlock the gates."

"What!" That was Philip Veritzen's deep voice like a cello even with the imperative note which it held. "Is the family in residence?"

Lillian giggled convulsively. "Isn't that old Phil for you?" she whispered. "He isn't saying that as a joke, either you know. He just naturally talks that way always visualizing himself and his friends as part of that old royalty-nobility regime of which he counts himself a member, even if left handed."

"They're all at home," Jim said, and we had the hysterical impression that under his breath he was adding "if that's what you mean."

"Then we'll come in," Mr. Veritzen decided. "Noel, if you'll attend to our guests I'll go ahead to apologize for this call although I cannot call it unexpected. Did Mrs. Graham receive my telegram yesterday, Jim?"

"I don't think any telegram came to the house yesterday," Jim answered. "But there was one late this afternoon."

Lillian caught me by the shoulder as I turned quickly from the window.

"That's the answer," she said. "Somewhere in the shuffle that wire was lost for a day. But how will we get our answer back?"

But even the possible consequences of our deceiving telegram to Philip Veritzen paled in my mind beside the urge in my mind to get hold of Mary. If my deductions were worth anything and I knew of no other explanation of the elder Veritzen's injunction to Noel to look after the guests, the girl of Noel's letter would appear in the living room in a minute or two. I would not permit Mary to have that meeting thrust upon her unwarned.

"Mary!" I said frantically shaking off Lillian's hand. "I must get Mary out of the way before those people come in."

"I'll have her here in a second," Katherine promised, skimming past me, and I sat down heavily in the nearest chair, relieved of one dread because of her promise, but aghast at the complications which this premature arrival of Philip Veritzen might cause.

"Don't you dare slump!" Lillian's low tones were imperative. "Remember, you're the hostess. You've got to get down those stairs, pronto. Luckily you didn't change anything but your dress and shoes when you came upstairs. Get into them again, while I send Katie down to answer the door and stall for you till you get down."

She hurried out of the door to the little veranda where Katie sat, ready to call us if the baby should need anything, and was back again before Katie's running feet had reached the staircase.

"Why the hush, hush?"

"They haven't knocked yet, have they?" she asked, and I shook my head as it emerged through the top of the gown I was putting on.

"Then Katie'll be in time," she said. "The youngsters are so taken up with the dancing that they wouldn't look up if Joshua and his trumpeters marched around the farmhouse, mistaking it for Jericho. And Harry and Dickey are probably taking their usual evening tramp, combining heavy patrol duty with the thing they like best to do. And here's Mary! Ah! Katrina, let's get into some glad rags!"

"Not I," Katherine said firmly. "That heaven that isn't part of my job." I heard that much as she took her hand from Mary's arm and Lillian slipped tactfully past me. Mary looked at me wonderingly as I closed the door.

"Why all the hush' hush?" she asked curiously.

"Because," I said stooping to fasten my shoes so that I would not have to look at her, "there are some unexpected guests at the door, and I wanted you to know about them before you saw them."

She was silent for the fraction of a second and then slipped to the floor beside me.

"Let me do that!" she said quietly, taking the fastener from my hands, and did not speak again until she had deftly fastened the shoes and had once more risen to her feet.

"Unexpected guests," she repeated, "and I am to be warned. Does that mean that Veritzen père et son fils sont arrivés?"

"Not only arrived, but accompanied," I answered gravely.

"By whom?" she asked, suddenly tense.

"That I do not know," I answered, and then we heard the hall door open and Katie's high-pitched voice in characteristic greeting—I despaired long ago of making my little maid conventional.

"Oh! hello! Meester Veritzen! Yah! Meests Garham, she coop-stairs, Coom in and sit down. I call her."

Sports Editor, The Star

UNLESS the Kappas and Prospect Firemen in the Commercial league discover some way to decide which of the two teams is the stronger there will have to be a new way devised to pick the champion of the league besides on the won and lost basis. Up to yesterday both teams had won four games and lost none and today they have the same record despite a full nine inning game between themselves yesterday. The final score of yesterday's encounter between the two was 4-4 so neither of them gets credit for the victory. That goes to darkness. He stopped the game when nothing else would.

The K. of P. and Company B outfit did something yesterday no other team has duplicated to date this season. However it was probably because no other two teams have attempted it. The two staged a double header and the K. of P.'s silenced the infantry scoring guns in both games, winning the first 1-0 and the second 7-5.

Starling Somerlot of the Serv-U-Wel grocers entered the local hall of fame yesterday by hurling his team to a 3-0 shutout over the Erie Traffic club. He gave the Erie nine the grand total of exactly no hits in the seven innings. Two men got on, one as far as second through an error on W. Jerew and the other got to first on a walk. Both might as well have gone back to the dugout and saved time. Neither got any farther.

It looked for awhile like the Kappas and Prospect were going to battle through their setto to a scoreless tie instead of a 4-4 deadlock. Neither team scored a run in the first three innings and there was nothing to indicate any changes were about to take place in the proceedings. Prospect nicked Gunder for a hit each inning but didn't come close to scoring. The Kappas got to Lauer for four hits in the first three frames but neither team came near getting a run across the plate.

Monnett drew a walk for Prospect in the fourth inning and broke the scoring ice when he scampered in on Chapman's hit. The scoring of Monnett was the signal for activities to begin in a big way so both teams went on a scoring spree that netted all the runs for both teams within the next two innings. Johnnie Gillis cracked out one of his rare triples in the fifth with the bases clogged and that brought in three scores for the league champs. Gillis then scored on Hogan's hit and that ended the Kappa's scoring.

Prospect chased across another run in the fifth and added two in the sixth to tie it up but neither could cross the plate in later innings. H. Lauer did get home with one run but was sent back to third because of another Prospect runner's interference with the fielding of the ball.

Art Amick and Bob Peadon staged a first class mound duel in the first game of the K. of P.-Company B twin bill. Neither team scored until the last half of the seventh when K. of P's scored their single tally of the game—unearned. Amick didn't deserve to lose and neither did Peadon. It should have been a tie game but an outfield error tossed it away for the soldiers.

In the second game the K. of P's got to Edler for some solid hits which coupled with some errors allowed a total of seven scores. The fraternal team was almost as liberal in giving runs away as the Soldiers, errors accounting for a large part of the Company B quota of five markers. Peadon also pitched the second game of the day.

Starling Somerlot was complete master of the Erie Traffic club. In only two innings did more than three men face him. He was given almost perfect support by his teammates. Somerlot set three men down by the strikeout route and the rest were retired by other means.

The General Excavators and Wesley Juniors staged their battle for the cellar with the Excavators coming out ahead by a 4-1 score.

Score by innings and batteries of the game:

Kappas	000 040 000—4
Prospect	000 112 00x—4

SPORTSMAN'S Hall of Fame

NO-HIT performances in Marion recreation baseball are rare. There is generally one or two a season in the four city leagues but there have never been more than that as far as records will reveal.

Starling Somerlot is the latest man to achieve this coveted accomplishment. Somerlot, hurling for the Serv-U-Wel grocers turned back the Erie Traffic club yesterday for seven innings without allowing the faintest semblance of a hit. The grocers won the game 3 to 0.

Thus another ball player carves for himself a niche in the Sportsman's Hall of Fame.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

WHEN the city recreation baseball commission convenes next Wednesday night for the first time in more than a month there will be plenty of business waiting for its attention. Some of it probably that has no business being there. However as long as there is recreation ball there will be "kicks" and on account of this there are two official protests waiting for the commission's action next week.

It is interesting to note that both of these protests concern the Ohio Fuel Gas company, a team playing its first year in Marion softball. One of the protests asks that a game which the Ohio Fuel won be thrown out and the other asks that a game lost by the Ohio Fuel be thrown out. The Gas company is protesting the game played with Silk Mills which the latter team won 7 to 5. The other game has been protested by the C. & O. railroad and asks the commission to throw out the game which the Ohio Fuel won 3 to 2.

• • •

According to the best information this writer can assemble on his own behalf at least one of the protests is likely to cost the team entering it $2.00 without accomplishing anything. The other may go through inasmuch as there is a technical ruling at stake, but even that is doubtful.

• • •

The games next week will complete the first round of the 1931 season. There are a few postponed games remaining on the books, but the first half of the schedule will be officially completed. In most cases there is quite a different outlook than at this time last season. Let's compare the league with last year at this time.

• • •

In 1930 John Clark and Calvary were battling for the No. 1 Sunday school league. This season Calvary is holding the fort alone with Trinity Baptists the most serious challenger. John Clark hasn't won a game and is deeply imbedded in the cellar position. Quite a change!

• • •

Last season at this time Lee Street was leading No. 2 Sunday school circuit with Forest Lawn and Wesley M. E. battling for second post. This season Lee Street is competing in No. 1 circuit and neither Forest Lawn nor Wesley are even close to first place. Forest Lawn is in fifth and Wesley is in eighth. The Presbyterians are in first with the Christian Seniors and St. Paul Lutheran pressing them closely.

• • •

In the Industrial league the Erie Roundhouse has also hit the skids, slumping from first place in 1930 to fourth at the present stage of this year's battle for the Industrial league pennant. The Huber and C., D. & M. are battling for the top with the Electricians holding the edge at present. However, it wouldn't be surprising to see the Huber pass them before many weeks have become history. In fact I'm predicting this to happen. (If that prediction doesn't work out that way it won't be particularly unusual).

• • •

The Kappas, Serv-U-Wel and Prospect Firemen of the Commercial league are the only three teams in the city who are battling for almost identical posts this season as they were at this point last year. The first two teams are running a dead heat for the lead with the Serv-U-Wel nine close behind. The Erie Traffic club is almost up even with the Serv-U-Wel but they were not in the league last year. The race is still open. The winner is still in doubt. Anything may happen.

And now comes the good news. I'm not only through with this daily column of nonsensical comment for today but I'm finished with it until Stribling has lifted the heavyweight fight crown from the brow of that alleged champion Herr Max Schmeling. In other words, I'm taking a vacation. (That crack about "what did you ever do to earn a vacation" wasn't necessary.) I know it but that doesn't make any difference.

CHAMPS CONTINUE TO WIN WITH REGULARS MISSING FROM TEAM

Grove Chalks Up Twelfth Victory; Cleveland Beats Washington.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

A patch-up infield means little to Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics as they rumble along in pursuit of their third straight American league title. Mickey Cochrane, the great catcher, still is on the bench and two members of the inner works are playing out of their regular positions, but it has no appreciable effect on the play of the champions.

Phil Todt, the veteran filling in for Jimmy Foxx at first base while Jimmy holds down the hot corner, belted two home runs yesterday as the A's opened their second western tour with a 10 to 4 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Todt's two big blows accounted for five runs, and Al Simmons and Mule Haas drove in the other five.

Lefty Grove went the full distance for the Mackmen to register his twelfth triumph of the season.

Win Streak Broken

Washington, after having won 12 straight dropped a 9 to 6 decision to the Cleveland Indians and fell back a full game in the race for the American league lead. The Indians jumped on "Sad Sam" Jones for all their hits and runs before he was relieved in the sixth.

Led by larruping Lou Gehrig, who smashed a homerun, two doubles and a single by way of celebrating his twenty-eighth birthday, the New York Yankees slaughtered the St. Louis Browns, 16 to 5. Babe Ruth hit his twelfth homer of the year.

Although hit hard, George Uhle pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 7 to 6 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Cards Boost Lead

By taking their second straight from the Boston Braves, 11 to 3, while the Giants were being subdued by Pittsburgh, the St. Louis Cardinals increased their lead over the National league pack a full game.

Ray Kramer held the Giants to six hits as the Pirates squared their series 4 to 1. Pittsburgh collected only five safeties off Clarence Mitchell and Joe Heving, but four of them produced four runs.

After spotting their opponents a three-run lead in the early innings, the Chicago Cubs came back to pound five Brooklyn pitchers hard and emerge with a 12 to 7 decision.

Chuck Klein smashed five consecutive hits, including a triple, as the Phillies scored again over Cincinnati, 19 to 3.

HARVARD WINS

Yale Crew Loses Heartbreaking Race to Rivals on Thames.

By The Associated Press

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20—Harvard found herself back on the crest of the intercollegiate seas today, victor over Yale in the climax to the first unbeaten season of Harvard varsity rowing in 23 years.

The Harvard varsity eight, composed mostly of sophomore stalwarts, whipped Yale in a heartbreaking finish to their four-mile classic on the Thames river that found Yale in a state of semi-collapse last evening. Leading from start to finish, Harvard stood off a thrilling challenge within the last half mile. Yale reduced the lead to a half length. Harvard then spurted to win by two and a half lengths.

Harvard's time of 23 minutes, 21 seconds was the slowest any winner has registered over the route since 1908. Yale was clocked in 23:31.

Mate Favored To Win American Derby Today

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 20—Fourteen colts and one lonely little filly, with no Twenty Grand to frighten them, awaited the bugle call for the twenty-third running of the $50,000 American derby at Washington Park today.

Mate, A. C. Bostwicks winner of the $50,000 Preakness stakes and which finished third in the Kentucky derby, remained the favorite to triumph today.

PRESBIES WIN, 3-0

The First Presbyterian Sunday school recreation ball team went to Bucyrus yesterday and handed the Riddell Manufacturers a 3 to 0 beating. The Presbyterian lineup was not the identical team that plays in the No. 2 Sunday school here. Several outside players replaced regulars. Don Lindsey and "Razz" Young made up the Presbyterian battery. The locals outhit the losers eight to three.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By The Associated Press

Mel Harder, Indians—His relief pitching halted Washington rally and gave Senators first defeat after 12 straight wins.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Made five straight hits, one a triple, against Reds.

Bob Grove, Athletics — Won twelfth victory of season, beating White Sox, 10-4.

MAJOR LEAGUES CASTING ENVIOUS EYES ON BRILLIANT COAST CATCHER

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Fanettes cheer him; pitchers glare at him and big league scouts covet him—Frank Cox, hard hitting catcher with the school boy complexion who wears the uniform of the Seattle Indians.

He is the most talked of player in the Pacific Coast league this season.

Young Cox, just 21, has put the cellar-stationed Seattle club in the headlines. He is the Coast league's best hitting catcher since Mickey Cochrane left Portland after 1925 to join the Philadelphia Athletics.

For the first seven weeks of the season, Cox walloped the ball at the amazing clip of .526. This average was for 95 times at bat in 29 games and included six two-baggers, one triple and one homerun.

Because of his ability to get on base, he has been used as the leadoff man in the batting order. It is a rare situation as the catcher, ing the hardest worker on the team, usually takes his turn at the plate just before the pitcher.

Cox is a product of "Big Rec," one of the many playing fields in Golden Gate park here. While still attending Polytechnic high school he played in the San Francisco Winter league, semi-pro circuit which has turned out numerous major league stars.

Seattle picked up the youngster three years ago. After two seasons as an understudy, he arrived with a rush this year to beat out Alex Gaston, big league veteran, for first string position. Cox is a left-handed batter and a line drive hitter, of good placement ability.

While William Klepper, president of the Seattle club, says there are no strings attached to Cox, it is generally understood the Detroit Tigers will have first call on his services.

The Tigers have some sort of a tie-in with the coast league team which enabled them to get the contract on Marvin Owen, infielder this spring.

DUDLEY LEADS FIELD IN GOLF TOURNEY

Players Closely Bunched in Western Open Play on Dayton Course.

By The Associated Press

MIAMI VALLEY CLUB, DAYTON, O., June 20—Picking the winner of the Western Open golf championship was just as much guess work today as when it started.

As the field lined up for the final 36-hole push, the leaders were so closely bunched it was a toss-up.

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., a contender in any golf tournament, led by two slim shots with a 139 total, the only sub-par collection in the field

Jock Collins, a good player on a familiar course, was right behind him with a 141; George Von Elm of Detroit, was in a fine spot with a 142 while only one shot away came the surest shelling brigades of the tournament — Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Olin Dutra.

The field, closely bunched since the start, became even more close yesterday. Dudley added a sub-par round of 70 to his 69 of Thursday; Collins showed the way with a sizzling 67 to set a new competitive course record; Von Elm took a 70 while the Haig slipped.

The remainder of the field was closely bunched back of these leaders, in strategic positions ready to step in the front rank should any of the big money winners falter by the wayside.

TITLE ASPIRANTS IN DAILY WORKOUTS AS TIME FOR BOUT NEARS

Stribling and Schmeling Rapidly Reaching Peak of Condition for Battle.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, June 20—A couple of young business men, with a million dollars or so at stake, are busily preparing to give the midwest the biggest fistic thrill that has wandered out this way since Jack Dempsey battered that Giant Jess Willard into subjection at Toledo in 1919.

On the shores of Conneaut lake in Pennsylvania, almost 100 miles away, Max Schmeling is cloutin sparring partners daily while on the fringe of this city, at Geauga Lake, Bill Stribling trains at night in gentler fashion. And in less than two weeks, these two will battle 15 rounds for the heavyweight championship in Cleveland's new municipal stadium, on the night of July 3.

Max Looks Like Dempsey

The setting for the battle of the black browed German who looks like Dempsey, and Stribling, the smiling Georgian, lacks some of the color of sun-scorched Toledo where a giant crumbled before the iron fists of one of the greatest heavyweights of all times.

Schmeling, the champion, surblackened and aggressive, looks more like the young Dempsey every day as he shifts, weaves, and whips short punches from either side into the heads and bodies of his helpers. He seems stronger and liveller now than he did a year ago in training for his fiasco with Jack Sharkey when he won the heavyweight title on a foul. He could step into the ring with Stribling tomorrow if it were necessary, so fine is his present condition.

Trains at Night

The youthful Georgian, old in the fight game but young in years, is equally fit. With the aid of Pa Stribling, the father-manager has figured it out that fighting at night calls for training at night so he is to keep in perfect tune with conditions as they will be on the night of July 3. As a result the Stribling camp scarcely stirs during the day but the coming of darkness brings out the sparring partners and the paraphernalia. Stribling goes into the training ring at 9 p. m., the exact time he believes he will be called out to face Schmeling. Today Bill is close to the 170 pounds he expects to weigh for the title test.

STOCKS END WEEK HIGHER

Awakened by Conference Announcement Made by President Hoover.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 20—The stock market ended its dullest week in months today with a violent upturn in prices.

The reason for this bullish awakening was provided by President Hoover's announcement that he would call non-partisan conferences looking to steps to assist the business situation, particularly in agriculture.

Prices surged up from $2 to more than 10 points, with several of the principal issues gaining more than 6 points. Trading in the latter was the most active of the month. Transfers for the entire session, were about a million and a half shares.

Bonds also joined the advance, particularly the German issues, and the foreign rails. Carrier issues, in the railroad share and bond markets were conspicuously strong, as Wall Street felt that President Hoover's announcement may possibly deal with the domestic railroad situation, as well as conditions abroad.

The upturn came at a time when professional sentiment was again seeping through the financial district. Many observers had insisted that the extreme dullness of the stock market must be regarded as a foreboding of an important upturn, but the bear broker put it, they seemed to be moving in the wilderness.

The Washington announcement came as a surprise to Wall Street, and the extent of the upturn presumably reflected primarily the hasty withdrawal of orders. It had been unofficially reported in Wall Street for some time that the Washington administration was giving its serious attentions to the German situation, and that the federal reserve system and Central banks had decided to keep it in hand, but it required a formal statement to discourage the shorts.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Today found dealers carrying large supplies of all kinds of seasonable fruits and vegetables in anticipation of the unusual heavy week-end buying. But few leaders were being offered, the prices quoted were in the main, the same as prevailed yesterday. New potatoes at 25 cents a peck and new peas and green beans at three pounds for 25 cents were practically the only leaders.

Dealers were carrying a few lima beans today that were selling slow at 40 cents a pint, the quality was only fair and the supply was small.

Strawberries were selling at 15 cents today at most of the stores although a few were offering berries of fairly good quality at 12 cents. Although a large crop is anticipated, it is not thought the price will go much below 15 cents. Pineapples were selling today at 15 cents and dealers were carrying large supplies.

CROP REPORTS CAUSE GAINS

Wheat Higher All Around as Damage Reported Heavy in Canada.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 20 Higher prices for grains early today accompanied renewal of severe crop damage reports from Canada. A Chicago crop authority at Moosejaw, Sask., wired that between Craven and Moosejaw, few patches in even the best fields of wheat could yield five bushels an acre. Opening unchanged to ¼ cent higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ½@¾ up and then continued to mount.

Brisk upturns in securities accelerated wheat price advances, with messages pouring in giving emphasis to drouth havoc in Canada. A dispatch from Indian Head, Sask., said wheat that two weeks ago showed life appeared dead now. All over that region, he added, much of the crop left was so poor and thin it would not be greatly benefitted by rain.

World supplies of wheat showed 46,478,000 bushels decrease for May. This compared with 63,548,000 bushels decrease in April and 59,081,000 decrease a year ago, on the upturn in wheat prices. Selling enlarged, and notice was taking of assertions that without figuring or any carryover the United States would have on hand July 1 a four-year average wheat surplus for export. Corn and oats parallelled the action of wheat.

Despite lower hog values, provisions sympathized with grain strength.

SIX TRANSFERS ON RECORDS IN WEEK

Suspension of Business on Tuesday Brings Total Down.

Suspension of business Tuesday sent really transfers and mortgage loan activity into a slump this week records of County Recorder Charles A Markert show.

Six real estate transfers and one mortgage loan, the fewest recorded in any one week in more than three years, were filed with the county recorder this week.

The single mortgage loan was placed on city property by a loan company. A week ago seven loans totalling $17,085 were placed on city and county property.

Real estate transfers follow

George H. Augenstein to Max Yarrington, 8.5 acres in Richland township, $1

N E and F M Arnold, by sheriff to Fannie M. Arnold, part Marion lot, $4,500

Mildred J Cleary to Otto Lee Harper and others, Marion lot $1.

Clyde Hart to Effie O. Tatt half of Caledonia lot, $1.

Charles D Reynolds to Elmer F and Grace Disterdick, part Green Camp lot, $1

FIRST WATERMELONS ON MARKET HERE

Price, However, Is Not Conducive to Large Demand.

The arrival of the first watermelons, home grown cherries and blackberries featured the local markets this week. In anticipation of a very limited demand, dealers were carrying but a few melons which were selling from 90 cents to $1.25 each. Home grown cherries were selling today at 17 cents a quart and blackberries at 20 cents.

Strawberries for canning were also featured by dealers who say this week and next will see the peak of the strawberry season. The favorable weather has produced a large crop of berries and good quality fruit sold as low as two quarts for 25 cents during the week. Most of the dealers, however, held the price to 15 cents.

Green lima beans have made their appearance on the markets, like watermelons, however, only a small supply was being carried as the price of 40 cents a pint was not indicative of a large demand. Roasting ears have also appeared on the markets for the second time this summer. The quality is only fair however, and dealers were asking from 40 to 60 cents a dozen.

The week found a large supply of nearly every kind of seasonable fruits and vegetables available and prices, with the exception of celery, showed no advance. Celery is now selling at the highest point in several years, a price of 20 and 35 cents a bunch being asked. A between season period is given by dealers as the cause of the high price.

New potatoes were offered at 30 cents a peck by several dealers during the week, as a leader. The price of from 35 to 50 cents prevailed with most dealers however.

Bankruptcy Referee Will Hear Five Cases

Five cases are scheduled to come before Referee Fred H Kruse of Toledo, presiding in the absence of Referee H P Eastman of Ottawa, who is ill, in a session of bankruptcy court in the common pleas courtroom next Thursday.

Cases coming up for a first meeting of creditors are Robert N. Sullivan, Carl Gallina, Harry W. Oiler, Marion A. Leffler of Marion and John A Scranton of Agosta.

BANK CLEARINGS

A general decline of $33,352.72 in bank clearings this week under that of last week, as shown in a comparison of figures at the clearing house today. The decline is pointed out by bankers as not being indicative of any further decline in business but a natural fluctuation of business. The clearings for this week were shown to be $255,488.60 compared to $288,841.32 last week.

Y.M.C.A. To Open Three Playgrounds Next Week

Steam Shovel Grounds, Proposed High School Site and Lincoln Park To Be Used; Activity Here To Replace Camp Hepburn.

Plans for the operating of three Y. M. C. A. summer playgrounds were completed this morning and Monday morning will find two of the grounds thrown open to the boys and on Tuesday morning the third will be placed in operation by the Y, Earl N. Hale, secretary, said today.

Faced with a shortage of money due to the failure of the Marion Community Fund to reach the quota fixed by the fund committee, a decision not to open Camp Hepburn, the Y camp, was reached by the Y. M. C. A. directors and in its place it was decided to open an additional playground.

To Open Monday

Playgrounds at the Marion Steam Shovel grounds on Uncapher avenue, and at the grounds in southeastern Marion to be used as the site for the new high school, will be opened Monday morning while on Tuesday morning the playground at Lincoln park will be placed at the disposal of the boys.

The program will be in the nature of Y extension work and will be supervised by C. Carl May, boy's secretary at the Y. M. C. A. and F O Rudolph, physical director. Because of his services not being required at the Y camp at Hepburn, Secretary May will devote his entire time to the playgrounds, Mr. Hale said.

The playgrounds at Lincoln park will operate on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning, at the steam shovel grounds on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and at the new high school site, on each day of the week, but in the mornings only, the older boys going on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the younger boys on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The playground will be supervised by Physical Director Rudolph.

The playgrounds at both Lincoln park and the shovel grounds, will be supervised by Secretary May, and will be open to older boys in the mornings and younger boys in the afternoon.

Three Periods

Similar programs will be carried out at each playground, the time being divided into three periods, the first period to be devoted to games, the second to nature study and the third to stories. These will be varied, however, and will be a part of the entire program which includes games, swimming, handicraft, nature appreciation, dramatics, night events, stories, hikes, honors, inter-playground activities, archery and talks. The latter, Secretary Hale said, would be given by local men. The swimming will be done at the Y.

The purpose of the project, it was pointed out by the secretary, is physical betterment, appreciational and educational development, social adjustment and spiritual choices and growth. To develop interest, emblem awards will be given the boys showing the most progress in playground activities and advanced emblems for the best development. Boys for leadership and for the program, will be selected by a council of boys, picked from the groups at each playground.

More than 300 boys took advantage of the two playgrounds operated by the Y last year.
